HEW official blamed for MHMO folding

MALDEN -- The executive director or of Missouri Heal Health and Medical Organization (MHMO) Thursday night denied that the organization had misused funds and blamed the closing of the operation on one official in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

"As far as I can tell, it was a one-man decision," Johnny Wilson, director of MHMO, said, naming Dr. Holman Wehrett, regional director of lower care Public Health Services for HEW in Kansas City.

Was there some kind of bureaucratic ax to grind? Why was federal money denied to MHMO, forcing it to go out of business?

"I don't want to speculate until I get the reason," Wilson said.

He told the crowd gathered for a public meeting at the Malden Community Center that he had requested to be informed of the reasons for the denial, but the member of Dr. Wehrett's staff responsible for drawing up the reasons was on a two-week vacation.

However, a federal audit covering the period Oct. 1, 1974 to May 31, 1976, indicated the company was using federalfunds to cover a $400.000 deficit.

Buzz Crowder, public health chief in Kansas City, said he felt HEW would not continue to put money into a situation of "questionable fiscal integrity" and denied the MHMO funding request.

Asked about this report Thursday night, Wilson denied any improper use of funds.

"We've had every type audit you can imagine," he said, and each one proved us clean."

Wilson did say that there was a $389,000 deficit, but that this was within permissible guidelines set by HEW. He said use of federal funds by MHMO was proper under HEW guidelines.

"I feel we were all led into this situation kind of blind," he said, adding that there was no indication from HEW that funding would not be continued until he received a telegram on June 30 giving notice of the decision.

Wilson was indefinite about the organization ultimately paying off its debts to policy holders and hospitals.

"We're going to do everything we can to see that nobody has any personal losses," he said. "Our feeling is that all prior claims can be satisfied in some manner."

The exact financial shape of the organization is not presently known, Wilson said, but there should be enough money to pay all the bills prior to July 1.

Final reimbursements to individuals will not be made until all the assets are figured which will probably not be before Sept. 1.

At this point, Wilson estimated, that the organization would be able to pay 75 per cent of every dollar.

Those still with MHMO in good standing through September are still covered, he said, and bills will be paid with a $344,000 grant from HEW.

Some doctors, pharmacies and hospitals no longer honor the MHMO plan. In such cases, patients are advised to pay the bills, submit them to MHMO and the organization will reimburse the individual.

If a person applied to MHMO before July 1 and has not yet been accepted, his money will be refunded.

Wilson said the only way to overturn this decision would be through an order by the secretary of HEW, and no formal plans are now being considered to take this action.

Music group gives check to CP center

A check for $275 was presented Thursday night to members of the Scott-Mississippi-New Madrid Counties United Cerebral Palsy Children's Therapy Center 510 E. Center St., during the second of two benefit shows the New Century Salute to the Platters presented at the Ramada Inn.

The benefit shows were given for the therapy center by the musical group and Ramada Inn of Sikeston.

In an interview this morning with Bernard Purdy of Montreal, Canada, the original bass and baritone singer for the 1950's group, The Platters, it was learned that the group broke up in 1958 and later formed several different Platters groups. The original Platters were best know for such hits as "When Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" and "Only You".

The Alexandria, Va., based group does benefit shows often, and the members say they can "really feel they're doing a good show" at that time more than any other. Purdy said his band will keep up the image of the "real Platters".

The New Century Salute to the Platters consists of a four-piece backup band and five-member group.

When asked if they would return to Sikeston in the future, Purdy said the group enjoyed the people of Sikeston and hopes to return again.

City Clerk Lucy McCullough said the council had not made plans for use of the money pending the hearing but will probably make some soon at a council meeting.

Missourians get new tax cut

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Guarantees that Missourians will reap an additional $6 million in state income tax cuts because of changes in federal taxes were signed into law today by Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

Teasdale also signed a bill prohibiting insurance companeis from refusing to sell home and fire insurance solely because of the georgraphic location of the property and another setting up state regulation of hazardous wastes.

The tax bill insures that the increased standard income tax deduction enacted for federal tax purposes this year will be used in calculating state income taxes as well.

The state income tax system is tied to the federal system, but changes made by Congress in the federal tax plan this year raised questions about their impact on state taxes. Lawmakers approved the bill to insure Missourians would get the tax break.

For a married couple filing a joint return, the cut could mean an additional $24 savings in taxes owed the state next April.

Although total tax savings to individuals under the bill will be about $6 million, the actual revenue loss to the state will only be about $4.5 million since increased taxes totalling about $1.5 million will be paid by corporations because of the federal tax changes.

Under the insurance measure, also called the anti-redlining bill, insurance companies will be prohibited from cancelling home and fire insurance policies before they regularly expire and requires the firms to give specific reasons for cancelling or refusing to renew such policies.

Cancellation and refusal to issue or renew home and fire insurance policies solely because of location of the property to be insured would subject the company to sanctions by the state Insurance Division.

The bill is intended to halt what backers of it call the "self-fulfilling prophecy" of deteriorating urban neighborhoods where insurers unilaterally determine an area is too high risk because it is deteriorating and will not issue insurance there. Without insurance, those living in the neighborhoold are unable to maintain their property and so it does actually deteriorate.

The hazardous waste bill, one of Teasdale's many priorities last session, gives the state the authority to licenseand regulate the firms that produce hazardous waste. Standards would be set for disposal of the waste.

Passage of the bill was prompted by disclosures of several areas in the state where hazardous wastes had been dumped with little protection for the public or the environment.

In other actions, Teasdale signed bills:

—Including rabbis under legal provisons exempting religious leaders from revealing information in court that they received in their professional capacity.

—Permitting a person to transport voters to the polling place on election day.

—Removing the limitation on local government's authority to impose taxes or licensing fees on businesses.

—Giving notaries public authority to act in any county of the state.

—Increasing the authority of the director of the joint legislative Committee on Legislative Research.

Pharmacist's laetrile seized

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pharmacist whose supply of Laetrile was confiscated by federal agents in one of five new raids says government action will not stop the use of the controversial anticancer substance.

"They can't stop this because it works," Steven Michaelis, a pharmacist at Buckeye Lake, Ohio, said Wednesday after federal marshals and FBI and drug enforcement agents raided his home and office.

Michaelis, who admits filling prescriptions for Laetrile, said the government was attempting to stop him from "practicing my profession."

FDA pokesman Jack Walden said that three sites in West Palm Beach, Fla., and two near Columbus, Ohio, including Michaelis' home and office, were raided.

Mississippi County woman found dead after all-night search

CHARLESTON -- The body of a rural Charleston woman, Mrs. Helen Finley, 44, was found about 7:30 a.m. today, following an all-night search by Mississippi County Sheriff's Department and Missouri Highway Patrol officers and local citizens.

Sheriff Norris Grissom said today Mrs. Finley was reported missing by her family about 10:15 p.m. Thursday when she failed to return home after going into Charleston on a bicycle late in the afternoon to purchase groceries.

The family lives on Route One, about one mile east of town. The bicycle was found about 200 yards from her home.

Grissom said the woman died of multiple stab wounds.

The body was discovered near the mouth of a ditch culvert about four miles east of town, and it appeared that the killer had attempted to place her body inside the culvert for concealment.

Kenny McDowell, a crop dusting helicopter pilot who assisted the officers in the night search with the lights of his aircraft, spotted the body while flying over the area.

Searchers had combed fields and roads in the general area all night.

The body was taken to McMikle Funeral Home at Charleston, and Mississippi County Coroner Elgin McMikle said an autopsy was planned later today.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Safeway will close store on Aug. 13

The Safeway Store in Kingsway Mall will close its doors on Aug. 13.

"We've enjoyed being in Sikeston and we hate to leave, but our store is too small to carry all our product lines," store manager Richard Hill said today.

He said the firm either had to build a new store or remodel the existing one and decided it would be financially better to close.

Hill said the store has been profitable, but only by a small margin. Sales growth in Sikeston over the past five years has not been up to company expectations. The store opened in the fall of 1970.

The store is only one-half the size of newer Safeway stores and cannot handle all the new departments and products customers want, according to Gerald Mauldin, employe-public relations manager at the firm's regional headquarters in Little Rock., Ark. The store has 15,000 square feet, compared to 30,000 in the firms newer stores.

Another reason for closing the store is that it is the longest distance from the firm's distribution center, and has always been a little out of the company's territory, he said.

The store's 17 employes learned of the closing on Wednesday. Hill said. Safeway would try to place employes in other company stores if they wanted to remain with the firm.

Job Service employes move to main office

All Job Service employes of the local Missouri Division of Employment Security office have moved back into the main office at 202 S. Kingshighway, according to Dee Lambert, office manager.

Lambert said the employes were returned to the main office July 1 after working for about 15 months in the old Reiss Dairy Building, 526 S. Main St. He said the number of persons seeking unemployment benefits during the recessionary conditions of 1975 and 1976 made it necessary for part of the Job Service staff to move to the other building to handle all the clients. The employes who moved were with the unemployment insurance unit of the Job Service.

Lambert said no personnel changes were made as a result of the move.

A local Job Service office will be established at Dexter to serve persons in Stoddard County, and Lambert says the office, which will eventually offer all services of the Job Service, should open Aug. 1.

Some employes of the Job Service office in Sikeston are expected to be transferred to the Dexter office as an economy measure, Lambert added.

HEW official blamed for MHMO folding

MALDEN -- The executive director or of Missouri Heal Health and Medical Organization (MHMO) Thursday night denied that the organization had misused funds and blamed the closing of the operation on one official in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

"As far as I can tell, it was a one-man decision," Johnny Wilson, director of MH-MO, said, naming Dr. Holman Wehrett, regional director of lower care Public Health Services for HEW in Kansas City.

Was there some kind of bureaucratic ax to grind? Why was federal money denied to MHMO, forcing it to go out of business?

"I don't want to speculate until I get the reason," Wilson said.

He told the crowd gathered for a public meeting at the Malden Community Center that he had requested to be informed of the reasons for the denial, but the member of Dr. Wehrett's staff responsible for drawing up the reasons was on a two-week vacation.

However, a federal audit covering the period Oct. 1, 1974 to May 31, 1976, indicated the company was using federalfunds to cover a $400.000 deficit.

Buzz Crowder, public health chief in Kansas City, said he felt HEW would not continue to put money into a situation of "questionable fiscal integrity" and denied the MHMO funding request.

Asked about this report Thursday night, Wilson denied any improper use of funds.

"We've had every type audit you can imagine," he said, and each one proved us clean."

Wilson did say that there was a $389,000 deficit, but that this was within permissible guidelines set by HEW. He said use of federal funds by MHMO was proper under HEW guidelines.

"I feel we were all led into this situation kind of blind," he said, adding that there was no indication from HEW that funding would not be continued until he received a telegram on June 30 giving notice of the decision.

The exact financial shape of the organization is not presently known, Wilson said, but there should be enough money to pay all the bills prior to July 1.

Final reimbursements to individuals will not be made until all the assets are figured which will probably not be before Sept. 1.

At this point, Wilson estimated, that the organization would be able to pay 75 per cent of every dollar.

Some doctors, pharmacies and hospitals no longer honor the MHMO plan. In such cases, patients are advised to pay the bills, submit them to MHMO and the organization will reimburse the individual.

If a person applied to MHMO before July 1 and has not yet been accepted, his money will be refunded.

AND THE WINNER IS...

Six U.S. cities — Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, New Orleans and New York — are bidding to be selected as the site of the 1984 Summer Olympics.

This is more than a little surprising, given the recent history of the games, not to mention the budgetary plight of the last named city especially.

While Montreal, which hosted the 1976 edition, was spared a repetition of the tragedy that stained the Olympics four years earlier in Munich, it did witness such shameful episodes as the expulsion of Taiwan and the walkout of 20 or more African teams protesting something or other.

That the Olympics have become as much an arena for rival ideologies as for competing athletes is bad enough.

The good citizens of Montreal are still holding the bag for $1 billion in construction debts for facilities for the 1976 games — including a terrorist-proof Olympic Village — and are paying for their city's brief moment of glory in the form of a variety of higher taxes.

Yet it would be unfortunate were the Olympics ever to be abolished, for all their abundant shortcomings as a moral subsititute for war or as a paying proposition for the city that hosts them.

Since they have to be held somewhere, on balance it is pleasing that it will probably be an American city in 1984, as no foreign city is currently in the running.

THE PERFECT ASSIST

It was one of the hottest summer days on record and intolerably humid. Only ten minutes more of sticking to car seats and we'd be at the ocean. We couldn't wait to jump in and cool off.

As we rounded the last bend, we were abruptly flagged to a halt. A long train of boxcars was crawling across the highway. An older couple in a convertible had already been stopped. Half a dozen more cars squealed to a halt behind us.

For no apparent reason, the train slowed to a standstill. The driver ahead of us cut his motor. So did we. Behind, we could hear groans and a chain-reaction of impatient horns.

The engineer glared down at us from the train. He had his job to do and was obviously sweltering too.

In less than a minute the wheels began to turn again——backwards, clearing the track. As we started our engines, the elderly man in front of us hesitantly saluted. The surprised engineer caught the gesture and returned it——adding a full-moon grin. That was enough to change the mood of everyone in the stalled lineup. People waved and tooted as they passed over the tracks, caught up in a "train-reaction" of goodwill.

RED CHINA NORMALIZATION?
By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

During World War II, the Republic of China's mortal enemy, Japan, made tempting offers for a separate treaty which would have brought peace to China after many years of Japanese invasion.

But this would also have freed Japanese divisions to fight against the United States in the Pacific and thereby increased the length and casualties of the war.

To its great credit, the Republic of China rejected these offers and stood loyally by its ally, the United States. Now the situation is reversed and the Republic of China's mortal enemy, Red China, is offering to make a deal with the United States. Unfortunately, there are disturbing signs that our State Department is planning to abandon our longtime faithful ally and allow it to fall victim to an invasion by Red China.

Red China is demanding that the United States (1) sever diplomatic relations with the Republic of China on Taiwan, (2) cancel our 1954 mutual defense treaty with it, and (3) remove our troops and military bases from Taiwan. And what do we get in return? Red China will deign to permit us to send an ambassador to Peking. P... d.

The United States has absolutely nothing to gain by acquiescing in such a deal. Red China can't help us, can't hurt us and can't afford to buy from us.

Red China has nothing to sell that we need, and no money to buy what we have. The entire foreign trade of Red China with 800 million people is no more than that of the Republic of China on Taiwan with only 16 million people.

On the other hand, the United States has a great deal to lose by acquiescing in such a deal, namely, our moral integrity and our reputation as a reliable ally.

We've had a lot of talk about human rights this year. The Chinese Reds are the most inhumane regime in the history of the world, having killed some 60 million of their own people. This is why thousands of young Chinese try every year to escape by any possible means however dangerous, such as swimming to Hong Kong while dodging sharks and Red machine-gun fire.

Red China helped North Korea and North Vietnam kill more than 100,000 American servicemen during our wars in the Far East.

Acquiescing in the demands of the Red Chinese for diplomatic recognition on their terms would prove that agression does pay, that all our talk about human rights is a fraud, and that it doesn't pay to be an ally of the United States.

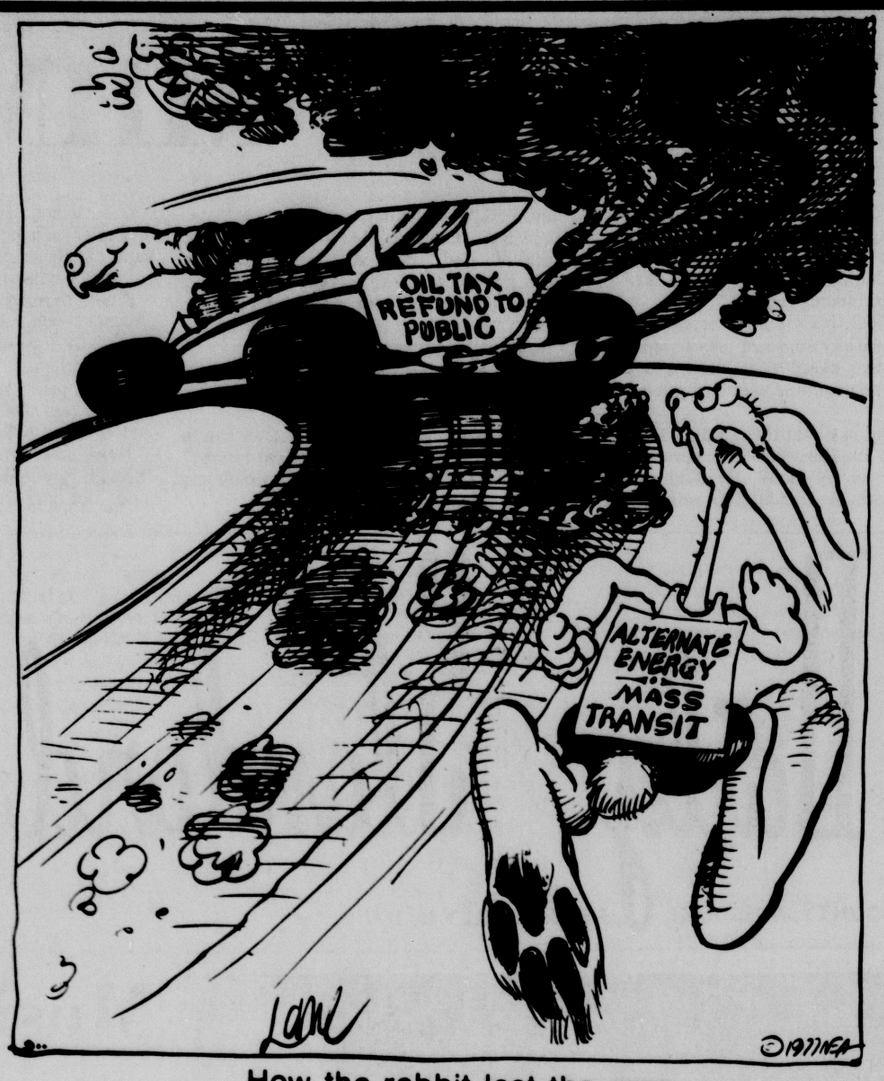

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is planning to visit Peking in August and he has not said no to any of Red China's demands. The head of our liaison office, Thomas S. Gates Jr., who recently returned from Peking, has stated bluntly that "the Chinese conditions are not negotiable -- not at all, not in the least respect."

If the terms are not negotiable, why is Vance making the long, exhausting trip to Peking?

The ominous inference is that he is going to tender a U.S. surrender to Red China's impudent demands.

Vance could dispel that fear by scheduling a stop at Taiwan on the way. Unfortunately, that is not likely. The State Department has already stopped calling the Republic of China by this name that it has been using for 60 years, and refers to it only as Taiwan.

The American people can scotch Vance's proposed "normalization" of relations with Red China. Congress could refuse to appropriate funds to support an embassy in Peking. Congress could also resolve that any closure of our embassy in Taiwan would result in a cut in the State Department's appropriation.

THE TEST OF THE EEOC

Eleven years before her recent appointment as head of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Eleanor Holmes Norton wrote in The Nation that "The Search for more dynamic progress daily turns Negroes to politics to replace the old reliance on court decisions." She was referring to the voter registration drives and civil rights activism that in the turmoil of the 1960s seemed to offer real possibilities of rapid advance toward racial equality. Today the entry of blacks into politics appears less promising; although progress has been made, the decline of the mass movement and the lackluster performance of some black elected officials have made it clear that the "old reliance on court decisions" cannot be abandoned altogether. In fact, Norton herself exemplifies the strategy of battling on two fronts-the legal and the political-and in naming her to the EEOC post, President Carter has made a laudable choice.

As a lawyer, activist, administrator and public official accustomed to infighting, Norton combines in one determined personality the skills required for the big task that faces her in Washington. She has worked as a lawyer with the ACLU, as an assistant to Mayor Lindsay of New York, and for the last seven years as head of the city's Commission on Human Rights. In a municipal bureaucracy famous for its clumsiness, her agency is known for its smooth operation; and in an era of economic decline, which often strikes the disadvantaged first and hardest, she managed to win victories for affirmative action in Civil Service hiring.

No doubt Ms. Norton will be severely tested at the EEOC. The agency is reported to be in dismal shape understaffed, underfunded and rendered virtually directionless by countervailing winds of pressure. Since 1965 no less than seven chairmen have headed the EEOC, and staff morale is low. The backlog of job discrimination cases now stands at 130,000, so that it often takes years to resolve a complaint.

The EEOC could and should be an important tool for ending discrimination based on age, race, sex and or disability. If anyone can forge that tool, it is Eleanor Holmes Norton. We wish her well

Well, we see where we may be having to put 16 cent stamps on first-class letters.

Seems like there's no end to this thing.

And, besides the cost of stamps, the cost of paper (including the newsprint on which your Daily Democrat is printed) is constantly rising. So's the cost of ink and other supplies connected with printing.

Remember the days when many of us used to send great gobs of Christmas cards each year?

That hasn't happended for a while, now.

And if prices continue to rise, receiving a greeting card, sent first-class through the U.S. mail, will be sort of like getting as big a gift as a five-pound box of chocolates was around 15 years ago.

AMTRAK HELPS SAVE ONE UNION STATION
From Lawyers Title News

The historic Union Railroad Station in New London, Conn., has been remodeled and opened as a new Amtrak PASSENGER FACILITY, THE FIRST NEW Amtrak facility on the northeast rail corridor. Union Station, built in 1885, was the last and largest railroad station designed by the illustrious architect Henry Hobson Richardson.

At first, plans were to demolish the station as part of an urban renewal program. Then a group of private citizens organized the Union Railroad Station Trust to try to rescue and preserve the landmark. They called on Anderson Notter, a Boston architectural firm nationally recognized for its imaginative renovation of obsolete-historic structures, to evaluate the feasibility of reusing the edifice.

Union Station Associates of New London, a development entity of Anderson Notter Associates Inc., purchased the station in October 1975 after extensive negotiations with the New London Redevelopment Agency. Aided by an Amtrak commitment to a 20-year lease for a portion of the structure, Union Station Associates obtained necessary financing for the project.

Among the agencies contributing preservation funds or support were the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the New London Redevelopment Agency, National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Department of the Interior (National Park Service), National Endowment for the Arts, National Advisory Council for Historic Preservation and the Department of Transportation (Federal Railroad Administration).

Now the entire exterior of Union Station has been refurbished to its original character. The slate roof has been patched and repaired, and intricate and outstanding brickwork, pointed and carefully cleaned. Windows, doors and trim have been repaired and painted.

Inside, a modern Amtrak station and passenger facility has been designed within the context of the historic. The high oak ceiling has been cleaned of dirt and paint. Oak wainscotting and trim have been stripped and refinished. A large hole in the floor dramatically connects the first floor with additional waiting space in the basement by means of a new grand stairway. This lower level also contains commercial space occupied by a newsstand and a plant shop. Old brick and granite walls have been cleaned to highlight the space along with new lighting and furnishings.

Adjacent to the main Amtrak level is a two-level restaurant reflecting the history of the railroads and the station itself. An interesting mezzanine level has been installed as an integral space which overlooks Amtrak's facilities.

A new hydraulic elevator provides easy access to all levels, including professional offices on the second floor. The new office space has a distinct charm and appeal.

New Job Angle: Gov't. Warns Employers They Must Hire Alcoholics and Drug Abusers

—WASHINGTON -- And now a highly placed, authoritative federal bureaucrat is reminding hundreds of thousands of corporations that "part of the price" of doing business with the U.S. is the hiring of , or the non-discrimination against, "alcoholics and drug abusers."

Furthermore, any firm with a federal suppliers' contract worth more than $50 a week must engage in "affirmative action" -- meaning go out and seek the compulsive drinkers and addicts -- if the companies want to handle the government's business.

There are no timetables for the search. Nor quotas.

But sooner or later the alcoholics and the addicts must be found. And promoted. That's what the government spokesman said.

If federal contract holders fail to take positive action to locate -- and promote -- alcoholics and drug abusers they will be automatically judged as violators of the 1973 law on aid to and rehabilitation of the handicapped. This means that hitherto uncontrolable drinkers and addicts must be sought out as are the traditional minorities -- blacks, Hispanics, Chicanos and women.

Under section 503 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act the alcoholics and drug addicts are considered handicapped. No doubt they are. And they must be qualified to accomplish their work tasks and executive assignments. But if they can fulfill their work, why are they considered alcoholics and drug abusers. And why "handicapped"?

If they are qualified and meet work standards they aren't handicapped. They may have a record of controlled drunkenness or addiction. But that doesn't translate into alcoholism or narcotics abuse. Thus they aren't handicapped except on some employment records. But that's a pink elephant of another color.

And it all complicates life for millions of handicapped working or work-seeking, says a highly placed official of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

"We've problems which are so intricate and sensitive that it's difficult for the God-blessed average citizen to comprehend fully," said this official. "We reckon that perhaps about 40 per cent of the 90 million in the work force today have some sort of handicap. These range from war injuries to heart trouble to epilepsy.

"And we are now in the process of creating labor-industry councils to open tens of thousands of jobs so we can rehabilitate the handicapped and give them dignified employment -- as well as bread -- all the way from the executive suites of multi-national companies to the janitors' closets. Now along comes this 'reminder' and speaking only for myself, it appears to mock all out efforts. This isn't a fun game for those who want to play the publicity game."

This source, a non-political committee member appointed by five presidents, talked of successful developments in the building and construction field's Apprenticeship Outreach Programs. According to the construction unions' national departmental president, Robert Georgine, 44,109 minority youths, mostly black, but including Hispanics, American Indians and Orientals, have been turned into skilled workers. Recently Bob Georgine dispatched communications to all his national unions urging them to seek out women for apprentice training and journeymen (well, make it yourney women) placement even in the highest paid and toughest building jobs.

There appears to be no definitive reason for the "reminder" to 250,000 federal contract holders to go out and find alcoholics and drug abusers. But there's no doubt of its definitiveness. Failure to act affirmatively can cost contractors their government orders, some running into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Further, a federal contractor's entire corporation is involved. For example, even a major company doing only 10 per cent of its total business with the government must conform with 1964 civil rights law's Title Seven and 1973 act's section 503 for all of the other 90 per cent in the private sector, though in no way related to the firm's federal contracts.

It is Donald Elisberg, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment Standards, who issued the reminder on July 6 warning, "Although some employers have been uncertain about whether alcoholics and drug abusers are considered handicapped, it is clear to us that the Congress...fully intended to cover these two groups. Employers who fail to consider qualified alcoholics and drug abusers fro employment, because of their handicap, are clearly violating the spirit of that (1973) law."

Well there are some 10 million alcoholics, 30 per cent of them are not yet rehabilitated. And there are over 500,000 drug addicts still on the stuff uncontrolled, untreated.

And now there are tens of thousands of corporate--industrial relations vice presidents with a new headache heading for a drink.

Kickbacks to Nursing Homes: A Multimillion-Dollar Scandal

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The nations scandal-plagued nursing homes keep coming up with new ways to skin the taxpayers. Now senators have discovered that most nursing homes collect kickbacks as a routine business practice.

Just about all of those who provide a service to nursing homes — from doctors to undertakers — allegedly return part of their payments under the table. Of course, the homes collect the full amount from government Medicaid funds, and the proprietors pocket the difference.

All this petty chiseling adds up to a multimillion-dollar scandal. The sordid details have been assembled in a confidential report, which the Senate Committee on Aging will release later this month. Committee investigators found that pharmacies, laboratories, laundries, food suppliers and other businesses pay kickbacks of up to 25 per cent to nursing homes.

As one vendor explained to the committee, with a shrug: "Kickbacks are a way of life in Medicaid. There is a little larceny in all of us."

The report describes how pharmacists, for example, make their payoffs. Some simply slip cash, running into thousands each year, to the convalescent homes in plain envelopes. Other pharmacists supply the homes with free drugs, vitamins, cosmetics and other booty.

For homes that prefer less gross transactions, the druggists secretly pay the salaries of attendants or buy stock in the homes. Some also purchase advertising in nursing home brochures at 10 times the normal rates.

Investigators found some pharmacists who even rented space in the linen closets of nursing homes at ridiculous rates up to $1,000 a month. Others made their payoffs in color television sets, boats, desks, automobiles, trading stamps, free use of ski cabins or beach houses and prepaid vacations to Hawaii or Europe.

"The evidence is overwhelming that many pharmacists are required to pay kickbacks to nursing home operators as a precondition of obtaining business," the report states. Those who refuse to play the kickback game are barred from doing business with the corrupt homes. One pharmacist lost three nursing home clients when he tried to cut his kickbacks from 25 to 20 per cent.

What are the dimensions of the scandal? An incredible 90 per cent of the druggists surveyed in Florida, for example, told the committee that kickbacks are widespread. Investigators also found the practice prevalent among doctors, laboratories and vendors.

Complained a California pharmacist: The "sole concern" of many nursing homes "is for the buck. Nothing else matters. The pathetic patient in these convalescent homes and hospitals ... (is) treated as a piece of living meat — a commodity."

Footnore: Although the Senate investigators found the evidence abundant, only one kickback case has been prosecuted in the last five years. "The Internal Revenue Service has been anything but aggressive in its enforcement" of the law, the report charges. Chairman Frank Church, D.-Idaho, wants to make kickbacks a felony and encourage a federal crackdown.

Ice Cream Caper: The Food and Drug Administration, already under fire for banning saccharin, is now trying to tamper with Americas favorite dessert.

The agency wants to relax the recipe requirements for ice cream, permitting manufacturers to replace the milk with cheaper substances such as whey, casein and even cornstarch.

The man behind the ice cream switch, according to our sources, was the agencys former chief counsel, Peter Hutt. By an interesting coincidence, Hutt used to represent the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers before he joined the government. This was the same association that sought the recipe change.

Hutt insisted there was no conflict. He had not handled the request for a recipe change while he was an attorney for the ice cream makers, and he merely "approved" the new regulations as the counsel for the government, he told us.

Yet internal documents show that Hutt, in his role as a government official, huddled with the ice cream men at least twice. They not only pleaded for permission to use milk substitutes but requested that the cheaper ingredients be listed as "milk products." They wanted the government to allow them to misrepresent the contents, according to the memo, because "consumers have a low opinion of whey."

The ecstatic ice cream makers, meanwhile, are already developing cheaper mixtures. "To be honest," one admitted to us, "we'll put in just enough milk to get it on the label."

Footnote: A confidential White House memo warns that the change will cost the taxpayers as much as $183 million a year in higher price supports for the milk producers, who are already in an economic squeeze and can scarcely afford to lose the ice cream business. President Carter told Sen. Herman Talmadge, D.-Ga., in a private letter that he is "concerned" about the impact on milk price supports.

Food and Drug officials contend, in turn, that the cheaper ingredients will lower the price of ice cream. But Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Foreman, in an interview with our associate Howie Kurtz, disputed this prediction.

Rep. Charles Rose, D.-N.C., meanwhile, has learned of the ice cream tampering. He told us that the substitutes will "change the very character of ice cream." He will push legislation, therefore, to call the new product "imitation ice cream."

AND THE WINNER IS. . .

Six U.S. cities — Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, New Orleans and New York — are bidding to be selected as the site of the 1984 Summer Olympics.

This is more than a little surprising, given the recent history of the games, not to mention the budgetary plight of the last named city especially.

While Montreal, which hosted the 1976 edition, was spared a repetition of the tragedy that stained the Olympics four years earlier in Munich, it did witness such shameful episodes as the expulsion of Taiwan and the walkout of 20 or more African teams protesting something or other.

That the Olympics have become as much an arena for rival ideologies as for competing athletes is bad enough.

The good citizens of Montreal are still holding the bag for $1 billion in construction debts for facilities for the 1976 games — including a terrorist-proof Olympic Village — and are paying for their city's brief moment of glory in the form of a variety of higher taxes.

Yet it would be unfortunate were the Olympics ever to be abolished, for all their abundant shortcomings as a moral subsititute for war or as a paying proposition for the city that hosts them.

Since they have to be held somewhere, on balance it is pleasing that it will probably be an American city in 1984, as no foreign city is currently in the running.

THE PERFECT ASSIST

It was one of the hottest summer days on record and intolerably humid. Only ten minutes more of sticking to car seats and we'd be at the ocean. We couldn't wait to jump in and cool off.

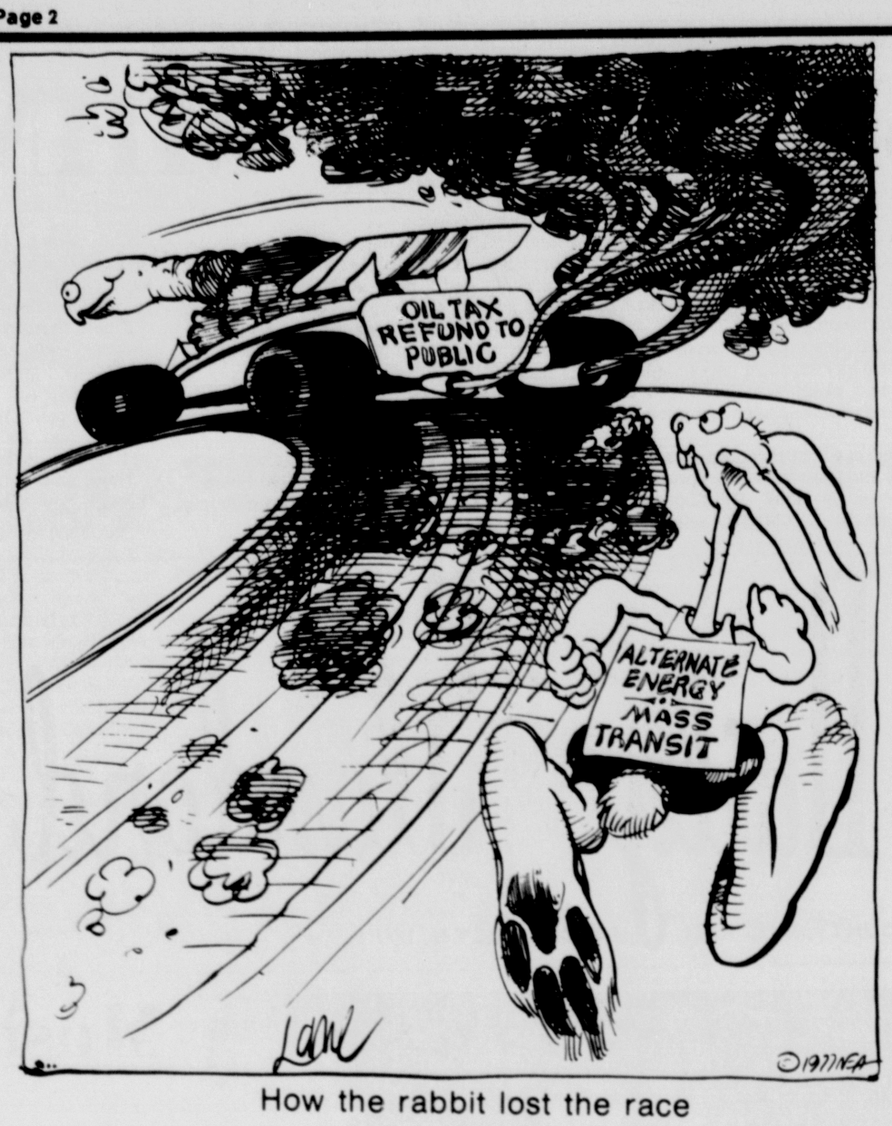

As we rounded the last bend, we were abruptly flagged to a halt. A long train of boxcars was crawling across the highway. An older couple in a convertible had already been stopped. Half a dozen more cars squealed to a halt behind us.

For no apparent reason, the train slowed to a standstill. The driver ahead of us cut his motor. So did we. Behind, we could hear groans and a chain-reaction of impatient horns.

The engineer glared down at us from the train. He had his job to do and was obviously sweltering too.

In less than a minute the wheels began to turn again——backwards, clearing the track. As we started our engines, the elderly man in front of us hesitantly saluted. The surprised engineer caught the gesture and returned it——adding a full-moon grin. That was enough to change the mood of everyone in the stalled lineup. People waved and tooted as they passed over the tracks, caught up in a "train-reaction" of goodwill.

RED CHINA NORMALIZATION?
By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

During World War II, the Republic of China's mortal enemy, Japan, made tempting offers for a separate treaty which would have brought peace to China after many years of Japanese invasion.

But this would also have freed Japanese divisions to fight against the United States in the Pacific and thereby increased the length and casualties of the war.

To its great credit, the Republic of China rejected these offers and stood loyally by its ally, the United States. Now the situation is reversed and the Republic of China's mortal enemy, Red China, is offering to make a deal with the United States. Unfortunately, there are disturbing signs that our State Department is planning to abandon our longtime faithful ally and allow it to fall victim to an invasion by Red China.

Red China is demanding that the United States (1) sever diplomatic relations with the Republic of China on Taiwan, (2) cancel our 1954 mutual defense treaty with it, and (3) remove our troops and military bases from Taiwan. And what do we get in return? Red China will deign to permit us to send an ambassador to Peking. P[illegible].

TAKING STOCK

A man who had bumped his head and gone into a coma awoke clearheaded and refreshed in 1996. The first thing he did was to phone his broker who informed him that his AT & T stock was now worth $5 million, his GM stock $10 million, and his Zerox stock $15 million. "Golly," the man exclaimed excitedly, "I'm rich!" Then the phone operator interrupted him. "Your three minutes are up. Deposit $1 million please."

UP, UP AND UP

Well, we see where we may be having to put 16 cent stamps on first-class letters.

Seems like there's no end to this thing.

And, besides the cost of stamps, the cost of paper (including the newsprint on which your Daily Democrat is printed) is constantly rising. So's the cost of ink and other supplies connected with printing.

Remember the days when many of us used to send great gobs of Christmas cards each year?

That hasn't happended for a while, now.

And if prices continue to rise, receiving a greeting card, sent first-class through the U.S. mail, will be sort of like getting as big a gift as a five-pound box of chocolates was around 15 years ago.

We may not be urging our kids in college to "write more often"-if we can afford the college in a few years, the added expense of the postage may be the straw that topples our bank accounts. —The Clinton Caily Democrat

AMTRAK HELPS SAVE ONE UNION STATION

From Lawyers Title News

The historic Union Railroad Station in New London, Conn., has been remodeled and opened as a new Amtrak PASSENGER FACILITY, THE FIRST NEW Amtrak facility on the northeast rail corridor. Union Station, built in 1885, was the last and largest railroad station designed by the illustrious architect Henry Hobson Richardson.

At first, plans were to demolish the station as part of an urban renewal program. Then a group of private citizens organized the Union Railroad Station Trust to try to rescue and preserve the landmark. They called on Anderson Notter, a Boston architectural firm nationally recognized for its imaginative renovation of obsolete-historic structures, to evaluate the feasibility of reusing the edifice.

Union Station Associates of New London, a development entity of Anderson Notter Associates Inc., purchased the station in October 1975 after extensive negotiations with the New London Redevelopment Agency. Aided by an Amtrak commitment to a 20-year lease for a portion of the structure, Union Station Associates obtained necessary financing for the project.

Among the agencies contributing preservation funds or support were the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the New London Redevelopment Agency, National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Department of the Interior (National Park Service), National Endowment for the Arts, National Advisory Council for Historic Preservation and the Department of Transportation (Federal Railroad Administration).

Now the entire exterior of Union Station has been refurbished to its original character. The slate roof has been patched and repaired, and intricate and outstanding brickwork, pointed and carefully cleaned. Windows, doors and trim have been repaired and painted.

Inside, a modern Amtrak station and passenger facility has been designed within the context of the historic. The high oak ceiling has been cleaned of dirt and paint. Oak wainscotting and trim have been stripped and refinished. A large hole in the floor dramatically connects the first floor with additional waiting space in the basement by means of a new grand stairway. This lower level also contains commercial space occupied by a newsstand and a plant shop. Old brick and granite walls have been cleaned to highlight the space along with new lighting and furnishings.

Adjacent to the main Amtrak level is a two-level restaurant reflecting the history of the railroads and the station itself. An interesting mezzanine level has been installed as an integral space which overlooks Amtrak's facilities.

A new hydraulic elevator provides easy access to all levels, including professional offices on the second floor. The new office space has a distinct charm and appeal.

In our parish in India, Father John was officiating at a wedding. In one part of the ceremony, it is customary for the bridegroom to give a veil to the bride. The groom in this case was a new convert. When the veil was placed in his hands, the boy hestitated a moment, unsure of his next move. Then he solemnly unfolded the veil and threw it over his own head! No one in church, including the bride and the priest, could keep from laughing

Decked!

My Father, a stern rear admiral, owned a 42-foot sailboat, and many summer weekends my friend Janice and I were his crew. The weekends, although much fun, were spent obediently carrying out the admiral's nautical commands—"Raise the mains'l! Let out the mizzens'l! Hoist the Jibs'l!" Each day we would rise at dawn and begin jumping to my father's commands. One morning the admiral said to my sleepyfriend, "Janice, hand me the pencil." Janice sat stupefied, desperately trying to recall all the nautical terms she had heard. Finally, she turned to him and said quietly, "I'm sorry, sir, but I don't know what a pens'l is."

New Job Angle: Gov't. Warns Employers They Must Hire Alcoholics and Drug Abusers

WASHINGTON -- And now a highly placed, authoritative federal bureaucrat is reminding hundreds of thousands of corporations that "part of the price" of doing business with the U.S. is the hiring of , or the non-discrimination against, "alcoholics and drug abusers."

Furthermore, any firm with a federal suppliers' contract worth more than $50 a week must engage in "affirmative action" -- meaning go out and seek the compulsive drinkers and addicts -- if the companies want to handle the government's business.

There are no timetables for the search. Nor quotas.

But sooner or later the alcoholics and the addicts must be found. And promoted. That's what the government spokesman said.

If federal contract holders fail to take positive action to locate -- and promote -- alcoholics and drug abusers they will be automatically judged as violators of the 1973 law on aid to and rehabilitation of the handicapped. This means that hitherto uncontrolable drinkers and addicts must be sought out as are the traditional minorities -- blacks, Hispanics, Chicanos and women.

Under section 503 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act the alcoholics and drug addicts are considered handicapped. No doubt they are. And they must be qualified to accomplish their work tasks and executive assignments. But if they can fulfill their work, why are they considered alcoholics and drug abusers. And why "handicapped"?

If they are qualified and meet work standards they aren't handicapped. They may have a record of controlled drunkenness or addiction. But that doesn't translate into alcoholism or narcotics abuse. Thus they aren't handicapped except on some employment records. But that's a pink elephant of another color.

And it all complicates life for millions of handicapped working or work-seeking, says a highly placed official of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

"We've problems which are so intricate and sensitive that it's difficult for the God-blessed average citizen to comprehend fully," said this official. "We reckon that perhaps about 40 per cent of the 90 million in the work force today have some sort of handicap. These range from war injuries to heart trouble to epilepsy.

"And we are now in the process of creating labor-industry councils to open tens of thousands of jobs so we can rehabilitate the handicapped and give them dignified employment -- as well as bread -- all the way from the executive suites of multi-national companies to the janitors' closets. Now along comes this 'reminder' and speaking only for myself, it appears to mock all out efforts. This isn't a fun game for those who want to play the publicity game."

This source, a non-political committee member appointed by five presidents, talked of successful developments in the building and construction field's Apprenticeship Outreach Programs. According to the construction unions' national departmental president, Robert Georgine, 44,109 minority youths, mostly black, but including Hispanics, American Indians and Orientals, have been turned into skilled workers. Recently Bob Georgine dispatched communications to all his national unions urging them to seek out women for apprentice training and journeymen (well, make it yourney women) placement even in the highest paid and toughest building jobs.

There appears to be no definitive reason for the "reminder" to 250,000 federal contract holders to go out and find alcoholics and drug abusers. But there's no doubt of its definitiveness. Failure to act affirmatively can cost contractors their government orders, some running into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Further, a federal contractor's entire corporation is involved. For example, even a major company doing only 10 per cent of its total business with the government must conform with 1964 civil rights law's Title Seven and 1973 act's section 503 for all of the other 90 per cent in the private sector, though in no way related to the firm's federal contracts.

It is Donald Elisberg, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment Standards, who issued the reminder on July 6 warning. "Although some employers have been uncertain about whether alcoholics and drug abusers are considered handicapped, it is clear to us that the Congress...fully intended to cover these two groups. Employers who fail to consider qualified alcoholics and drug abusers fro employment, because of their handicap, are clearly violating the spirit of that (1973) law."

Well there are some 10 million alcoholics, 30 per cent of them are not yet rehabilitated. And there are over 500,000 drug addicts still on the stuff uncontrolled, untreated.

And now there are tens of thousands of corporate--industrial relations vice presidents with a new headache heading for a drink.

Kickbacks to Nursing Homes: A Multimillion-Dollar Scandal

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The nations scandal-plagued nursing homes keep coming up with new ways to skin the taxpayers. Now senators have discovered that most nursing homes collect kickbacks as a routine business practice.

Just about all of those who provide a service to nursing homes — from doctors to undertakers — allegedly return part of their payments under the table. Of course, the homes collect the full amount from government Medicaid funds, and the proprietors pocket the difference.

All this petty chiseling adds up to a multimillion-dollar scandal. The sordid details have been assembled in a confidential report, which the Senate Committee on Aging will release later this month. Committee investigators found that pharmacies, laboratories, laundries, food suppliers and other businesses pay kickbacks of up to 25 per cent to nursing homes.

As one vendor explained to the committee, with a shrug: "Kickbacks are a way of life in Medicaid. There is a little larceny in all of us."

The report describes how pharmacists, for example, make their payoffs. Some simply slip cash, running into thousands each year, to the convalescent homes in plain envelopes. Other pharmacists supply the homes with free drugs, vitamins, cosmetics and other booty.

For homes that prefer less gross transactions, the druggists secretly pay the salaries of attendants or buy stock in the homes. Some also purchase advertising in nursing home brochures at 10 times the normal rates.

Investigators found some pharmacists who even rented space in the linen closets of nursing homes at ridiculous rates up to $1,000 a month. Others made their payoffs in color television sets, boats, desks, automobiles, trading stamps, free use of ski cabins or beach houses and prepaid vacations to Hawaii or Europe.

"The evidence is overwhelming that many pharmacists are required to pay kickbacks to nursing home operators as a precondition of obtaining business," the report states. Those who refuse to play the kickback game are barred from doing business with the corrupt homes. One pharmacist lost three nursing home clients when he tried to cut his kickbacks from 25 to 20 per cent.

What are the dimensions of the scandal? An incredible 90 per cent of the druggists surveyed in Florida, for example, told the committee that kickbacks are widespread. Investigators also found the practice prevalent among doctors, laboratories and vendors.

Complained a California pharmacist: The "sole concern" of many nursing homes "is for the buck. Nothing else matters. The pathetic patient in these convalescent homes and hospitals ... (is) treated as a piece of living meat — a commodity."

Footnore: Although the Senate investigators found the evidence abundant, only one kickback case has been prosecuted in the last five years. "The Internal Revenue Service has been anything but aggressive in its enforcement" of the law, the report charges. Chairman Frank Church, D.-Idaho, wants to make kickbacks a felony and encourage a federal crackdown.

Ice Cream Caper: The Food and Drug Administration, already under fire for banning saccharin, is now trying to tamper with Americas favorite dessert.

The agency wants to relax the recipe requirements for ice cream, permitting manufacturers to replace the milk with cheaper substances such as whey, casein and even cornstarch.

The man behind the ice cream switch, according to our sources, was the agencys former chief counsel, Peter Hutt. By an interesting coincidence, Hutt used to represent the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers before he joined the government. This was the same association that sought the recipe change.

Hutt insisted there was no conflict. He had not handled the request for a recipe change while he was an attorney for the ice cream makers, and he merely "approved" the new regulations as the counsel for the government, he told us.

Yet internal documents show that Hutt, in his role as a government official, huddled with the ice cream men at least twice. They not only pleaded for permission to use milk substitutes but requested that the cheaper ingredients be listed as "milk products." They wanted the government to allow them to misrepresent the contents, according to the memo, because "consumers have a low opinion of whey."

The ecstatic ice cream makers, meanwhile, are already developing cheaper mixtures. "To be honest," one admitted to us, "we'll put in just enough milk to get it on the label."

Footnote: A confidential White House memo warns that the change will cost the taxpayers as much as $183 million a year in higher price supports for the milk producers, who are already in an economic squeeze and can scarcely afford to lose the ice cream business. President Carter told Sen. Herman Talmadge, D.-Ga., in a private letter that he is "concerned" about the impact on milk price supports.

Food and Drug officials contend, in turn, that the cheaper ingredients will lower the price of ice cream. But Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Foreman, in an interview with our associate Howie Kurtz, disputed this prediction.

Rep. Charles Rose, D.-N.C., meanwhile, has learned of the ice cream tampering. He told us that the substitutes will "change the very character of ice cream." He will push legislation, therefore, to call the new product "imitation ice cream."

Bus kidnap anniversary today

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — One year ago today, 26 children from this community of 4,-500 and the driver of their school bus were kidnaped.

The story grabbed the world's attention.

Residents of Chowchilla who think about the case at all say they would rather forget it. And some think the only people who care about the busnaping case are reporters who have to cover the current pre-trial hearings for three defendants. The hearings, recessed today, were to resume Monday.

Carter supports no-fault bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D+Wash., has a new ally in his fight for national no-fault auto insurance: President Carter.

Magnuson, who first held hearings on no-fault in 1967, said, "With that help I think we can win."

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said Carter told him that Transportation Secretary Brock Adams would testify before the panel today in support of the bill.

Carter to hear hear Israeli plan

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin left for the United States today, taking with him a secret Israeli plan for peace in the Middle East. He said President Carter would be the first person to learn about the "concrete proposals for the peacemaking process." Begin, who meets with Carter next Tuesday and Wednesday, has not publicly disclosed details of the plan.

Birth leaves succession open

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Queen Silvia has given birth to a princess, a joyous occasion for Swedes but one that left open the question of who will succeed to the throne. The centuries-old monarchy does not allow female succession.

Doctors at the Karolinska Hospital reported that both the baby girl and the 33-year old German-born queen were doing well.

King Carl XVI Gustaf, who was present during the delivery on Thursday, is the first Swedish monarch in 199 years to become a father during his reign. It was also the first royal birth in a public hospital.

The king, 31, married the former Silvia Renate Sommerlath, a West German commoner, last June in a wedding that drew worldwide attention. It was Sweden's first royal wedding in 179 years.

Meredith to rejoin ABC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Meredith, the ex+Dallas Cowboys quarterback, will leave his post as an NBC sports commentator and return to ABC TV in the fall to again provide color commentary on ABC's Monday Night football.

Meredith, who played for Dallas for nine seasons, joined NBC in 1974 as a sports commentator and actor after four years at ABC.

An ABC spokesman said Thursday that Meredith signed a "multi-year" contract with the network but declined to say how much the joke-cracking 39-year-old Texan will earn.

The network said the contract primarily calls for Meredith to rejoin Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford as a commentator, but also allows him to appear in TV series, TV movies and various specials.

Alex Karras, the ex+Detroit Lions linebacker who worked with Gifford and Cosell on the football telecast the last two seasons, won't be on the program next fall, the spokesman said.

He said Karras' contract was not renewed and that Karras had decided to concentrate on his acting career.

Giscards help conduct tour

PARIS (AP) — President and Mrs. Valery Giscard d'Estaing helped guide 10,000 French citizens through the Elysee Palace as it was opened to the public for the first time to mark Bastille Day, the French national holiday.

A line of people half a mile long stretched between the presidential palace and the Place de la Concorde Thursday, waiting to visit the the elegant mansion and its grounds. In the first hour mGiscard d'Estaing and his wife shook 2,000 hands as two bands in the courtyard alternated playing patriotic tunes.

During the tour, d'Estaing quipped, "This isn't a very big house," then added as he walked along, "This is where I received (Soviet leader Leonid) Brezhnev."

At one point, he stopped in the middle of a group and asked questions such as, "What time did you get here?" "What do you have in this bag?" "Did you bring your food?"nHe also told visitors to stop for a while on the sprawling back lawn before leaving.

Brick layer invents dance

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Big success has eluded bricklayer John Standberry Jr. through his songs, so he's invented a dance he calls Oke-e-e Poke-e-e.

"There was a dance way back called the hokey pokey," he said. "This is a little bit similar but has a lot of modern steps."

Standberry, whose recording of his song about the new dance will be released about the end of the month, crooned a couple of bars in his tenor voice: "I know I can do the Oke-e-e Poke-e-e. Would you like to do the Oke-e-e Poke-e-e?"

Standberry says Elvis Presley was a truck driver when he walked into a studio and recorded a demonstration record, so there's no reason a bricklayer can't vet to the top.

Even if financial success never arrives, Standberry said, he's getting self-satisfaction

Today's news in brief

Bus kidnap anniversary today

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — One year ago today, 26 children from this community of 4,-500 and the driver of their school bus were kidnaped.

The story grabbed the world's attention.

Residents of Chowchilla who think about the case at all say they would rather forget it. And some think the only people who care about the busnaping case are reporters who have to cover the current pre-trial hearings for three defendants. The hearings, recessed today, were to resume Monday.

Carter supports no-fault bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D+Wash., has a new ally in his fight for national no-fault auto insurance: President Carter.

Magnuson, who first held hearings on no-fault in 1967, said, "With that help I think we can win."

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said Carter told him that Transportation Secretary Brock Adams would testify before the panel today in support of the bill.

Carter to hear hear Israeli plan

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin left for the United States today, taking with him a secret Israeli plan for peace in the Middle East. He said President Carter would be the first person to learn about the "concrete proposals for the peacemaking process." Begin, who meets with Carter next Tuesday and Wednesday, has not publicly disclosed details of the plan.

Birth leaves succession open

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Queen Silvia has given birth to a princess, a joyous occasion for Swedes but one that left open the question of who will succeed to the throne. The centuries-old monarchy does not allow female succession.

Doctors at the Karolinska Hospital reported that both the baby girl and the 33-year old German-born queen were doing well.

King Carl XVI Gustaf, who was present during the delivery on Thursday, is the first Swedish monarch in 199 years to become a father during his reign. It was also the first royal birth in a public hospital.

The king, 31, married the former Silvia Renate Sommerlath, a West German commoner, last June in a wedding that drew worldwide attention. It was Sweden's first royal wedding in 179 years.

Meredith to rejoin ABC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Meredith, the ex+Dallas Cowboys quarterback, will leave his post as an NBC sports commentator and return to ABC TV in the fall to again provide color commentary on ABC's Monday Night football.

Meredith, who played for Dallas for nine seasons, joined NBC in 1974 as a sports commentator and actor after four years at ABC.

An ABC spokesman said Thursday that Meredith signed a "multi-year" contract with the network but declined to say how much the joke-cracking 39-year-old Texan will earn.

The network said the contract primarily calls for Meredith to rejoin Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford as a commentator, but also allows him to appear in TV series, TV movies and various specials.

Alex Karras, the ex+Detroit Lions linebacker who worked with Gifford and Cosell on the football telecast the last two seasons, won't be on the program next fall, the spokesman said.

He said Karras' contract was not renewed and that Karras had decided to concentrate on his acting career.

Giscards help conduct tour

PARIS (AP) — President and Mrs. Valery Giscard d'Estaing helped guide 10,000 French citizens through the Elysee Palace as it was opened to the public for the first time to mark Bastille Day, the French national holiday.

A line of people half a mile long stretched between the presidential palace and the Place de la Concorde Thursday, waiting to visit the the elegant mansion and its grounds. In the first hour mGiscard d'Estaing and his wife shook 2,000 hands as two bands in the courtyard alternated playing patriotic tunes.

During the tour, d'Estaing quipped, "This isn't a very big house," then added as he walked along, "This is where I received (Soviet leader Leonid) Brezhnev."

At one point, he stopped in the middle of a group and asked questions such as, "What time did you get here?" "What do you have in this bag?" "Did you bring your food?"nHe also told visitors to stop for a while on the sprawling back lawn before leaving.

Brick layer invents dance

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Big success has eluded bricklayer John Standberry Jr. through his songs, so he's invented a dance he calls Oke-e-e Poke-e-e.

"There was a dance way back called the hokey pokey," he said. "This is a little bit similar but has a lot of modern steps."

Standberry, whose recording of his song about the new dance will be released about the end of the month, crooned a couple of bars in his tenor voice: "I know I can do the Oke-e-e Poke-e-e. Would you like to do the Oke-e-e Poke-e-e?"

Standberry says Elvis Presley was a truck driver when he walked into a studio and recorded a demonstration record, so there's no reason a bricklayer can't vet to the top.

Even if financial success never arrives, Standberry said, he's getting self-satisfaction

Watchtower conventions scheduled in Memphis

Fred Lanier

Fred L. Lanier, circuit supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses in Sikeston and 23 other congregations in eastern Missouri, will be a featured speaker at two Watchtower Conventions slated July 21-24 and July 28-31 at Mid-South Coliseum in Memphis.

Members of the Sikeston congregation will attend the second gathering, according to Russell Knauer.

Lanier will give a lecture that deals with Biblical and medical research related to blood transfusions on Thursday of each convention. Knauer said the conventions are two of 108 being held this summer in the United States. Combined attendance is expected to exceed one million.

Knauer also said Lanier is the convention manager for both gatherings, and as such will supervise 20 departments that provide feeding, rooming and other services for the delegates. More than 15,000 people from 19 states are expected to attend.

As circuit supervisor, Lanier visits area congregations in succession, spending a week with each. He has given lectures several times at the local Kindgom Hall.

Youth choir to present drama

The youth choir from First Baptist Church at Henderson, Tenn., will present "The Clown", a musical drama, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 W. Murray Lane. The performance features special makeup, lighting, sound and orchestrated taped accompaniment. The 19-voice choir is directed by their minister of music, George Scott. An all-church fellowship event will follow the presentation.

Pianist-singer-writer to appear in crusade

Steve Stanfield

EAST PRAIRIE-Steve Stanfield, pianist, singer and writer, will appear in a revival crusade with the Charles Massegee EVANGELISTIC TEAM AT 7:30 each evening Aug. 1-7 at First Baptist Church, 312 N. Center St.

A May 1974 graduate of Baylor University at Waco, Tex., Stanfield spent weekends during his college years traveling throughout Texas with the Calvary Singers. In 1973, the group went to Nashville, Tenn., and won first place in the National Quartet Convention's talent contest.

Stanfield's solos include selections ranging from old gospel favorites to modern Christian-folk music. He also accompanies, and sings duets with, Beverly Massegee, former supper club and Playboy circuit entertainer. Mrs. Massegee is the wife of evangelist Charles Massegee of Dallas Tex., who will conduct the crusade services.

First Assembly to hear missionary

The Rev. Samuel Humphreys, who is under provisional appointment with his wife to go to Alaska as missionaries, will speak and show slides during the 6 p.m. service Sunday at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway.

Appointed by the Division of Home Missions of the Assemblies of God, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Humphreys will be assigned to an Alaskan village called Dillingham in an area with no roads in or out and accessible only by air or sea. They will have the responsibility of building a new church there.

Following a time of congregational singing and worship, the Rev. Mr. Humphreys will present a 20-minute slide program before preaching, according to the Rev. Loren Wooten, pastor.

Christian Center to host Agape

Agape, a local youth group, will be the guest performers for next week's praise service at Sikeston Christian Center, 210 E. Center St. The Thursday night service will be a music program beginning at 7:30.

Sikeston Christian Center is a new meeting place for area youth featuring a Christian atmosphere and spiritual guidance on a non-denominational basis.

Bishops urged to seek school aid

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican urged Roman Catholic bishops today to seek government funds to support their parochial school systems. It said Catholic schools are a necessary counterbalance to modern secularism and a guarantee of religious freedom.

The Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education issued a 10,000-word document which also criticized Catholic school systems that cater mostly to the rich; urged priests, brothers and nuns not to abandon teaching, and insisted that the church's schools must meet high professional standards.

The document noted that some governments already provide financial support to Catholic schools and "guarantee both the preservation of the special status of the Catholic school and its ability to perform its function adequately.

"Catholic schools are thereby more or less closely associated with the national system," the document continued, "and are assured or an economic and juridical status similar to state schools. ... "These solutions are an encouragement to those responsible for Catholic schools in countries where the Catholic community must still shoulder a very heavy burden of cost to maintain an often highly important network of Catholic schools."

Southern Baptist schools get good 'report card'

MOBILE, Ala.-One of the most encouraging "report cards" ever issued to Southern Baptist colleges and universities has been presented by one of the nation's leading evaluators of educational effectiveness.

"Southern Baptist institutions, though like all colleges and universities today confronted with educational and financial problems, are as a group in sound condition," Earl J. McGrath, director of the Program in Liberal Studies at the University of Arizone, told the annual meeting of the Association of Southern Baptist Colleges and Schools (ASBCS).

McGrath and his associates received a grant of $100,000 last year from the Lilly Endowment of Indianapolis, Ind., to make a major study of Southern Baptist educational institutions. Forty-nine Southern Baptist colleges and universities participated in the analysis study in an effort to determine the status of Southern Baptist institutions in the educational sphere.

"These SBC institutions are in remarkable good shape, comparing them with other private institutions around the country. No other denomination, as a whole, can compare with Southern Baptists, as a group," said a layman in the United Presbyterian Church U.S.A. and long-time educator and former U.S. commissioner of education.

McGrath's exhaustive study of 49 of the 53 Southern Baptist schools surveyed such topiecs as statements of purpose, clarity of goals, long-range planning, financial stability, faculty freedom, student opinion, trustee relationships, denominational involvement, service to the community, shared decision-making, openness to innovation and other such educational criteria.

Exercise sessions dull?

Try these new ideas

If the mere thought of touching your toes a hundred times or jogging in place for ten minutes wears you out before you even start, you are not alone.

While few people will deny the benefits of exercising to keep fit, the fact is that if you're a typical American you've probably had a lot of false starts with exercise programs.

Let's face it, very few people find themselves doing pushups for the fun of it or get up in the middle of the night on impulse to work out with barbells. The problem with regular fitness workouts is that too often they become routine and tedious.

Here, then, are some tips on how you can keep your exercise sessions from getting dull, from the Health Insurance Institute.

-- Whether you're a runner, jogger, or a gymnast, get another member of your family, or a friend, to join in. You will find that having the companionship of a fellow jogger or a co-exerciser will make the workout much more pleasant.

-- Rather than face the same walls every day, change the scene. If you exercise at home, work out in different rooms. For those who participate in outside fitness programs, an occasional change of locale to prevent tedium is advised.

-- Alternate your exercises from day to day. However, do start with the easier exercises first in order to warm up.

-- Do set yourself a definite starting time for your daily workout and stick to it. Keeping to the same time slot is usually the only way most people can work a regular exercise routein into their daily schedule.

-- Don't overtire yourself. If you exercise at an unaccustomed pace, your body will only become wearier as your enthusiasm gets lower.

-- Set goals for yourself and keep a chart of your progress--miles you've run as well as pounds and inches lost.

Booklet gives guide for prenatal care

PRENATAL CARE

So you're going to have a baby. If it's your first, you'll probably have more questions now than any other time in your life. And even if you've had a baby before, you're bound to have a few new questions. How much weight should you gain? Why do you feel so tired? What should you watch out for between checkups? What will happen when you get to the hospital?

These questions and others are answered in a publication from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Prenatal Care tells how to maintain good general health during preganancy, what to look for between checkups with your doctor, and how to handle common health complaints, such as nausea, fatigue and backache. For your copy of Prenatal Care, send $1.05 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 121E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Here are some interesting facts about pregnancy:

Mothers who smoke have a greater chance of having a baby with a low birth weight. If you do smoke, try to cut down on the number of cigarettes.

Varicose veins are an enlargement of your veins, usually occuring in the lower leg. Frequently these varicose veins will get smaller and disappear during the first few weeks after you have your baby. Try to avoid tight clothing. If possible, try not to stand in one place for a long period of time. Sit down and put your feet up occasionally.

During pregnancy do not take any drugs or medicines -- not even an aspirin-- unless prescribed by your doctor. Many drugs can pass through your body to your baby and can have a harmful effect.

Between checkups, you should be aware of first warning signs of complications. Immediate care from your doctor can help prevent serious problems. Some early warning signs include: bleeding, no matter how slight; swelling or puffiness of your face or hands and sudden extreme weight gain; severe, continous headache; or dimness, blurring of vision, or flashes of light before your eyes.

Visit your doctor or health clinic early! Early and continuous care helps prevent serious illness for both you and your baby.

Prenatal Care ($1.05) is one of more than 200 selected publications listed in the Consumer Information Catalog, published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration. For your free copy of the Catalog, send a postcrd to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

You can melt chocolate in a saucepan over direct heat if you keep the heat very low; this method saves you from using a double-boiler.

Grandma's corner

At the first attack of chiggers let a drop of ammonia touch the affected spot and the cure is immediate. Or rub the chigger bites with an asprin tablet slightly dampened.

Put a sponge in a saucer and saturate with oil of lavender. Put one in each room and no flies will stay.

Red ants can be kept out of the pantry if a small quantity of green sage is placed on the shelves.

The best solution for mosquito bites is calamine lotion.

Dear Ann Landers

Wife needs to be alone

Dear Ann Landers: I love my husband very much, but we have one BIG problem. I'm a person who needs to be alone at times and John wants to be with me every minute.

I've told him repeatedly that I value my privacy and have pleaded with him to respect my wishes. Either he's not listening or I'm not expressing myself properly. Would you believe I have to lock myself in the bathroom just to get a few minutes by myself?

This has affected my sexual feelings toward him. John forces his presence on me to such a degree that I don't care to be close anymore. Am I unreasonable? Am I selfish? Please level with me, Ann.

I've reached the point where I want out of this marriage so I can call my soul my own.--Smothered in Bakersfield

Dear Baker: The first six words of your letter do not square with your last sentence. Sounds to me as if you've written a Dear John letter to Ann Landers.

If he wants to save your marriage he should get counseling. He needs to develop some inner resources so he won't have to be on you neck every minute. He also needs to understand YOUR need to be left alone. A mature relationship can tolerate silence and periods of "apartness." Too thick won't stick.

Dear Ann: Recently I gave birth to a stillborn baby. When I was in the hospital very few people phoned to say anything. I received no flowers and not even one sympathy card. I felt so sad and heartsick, yet I am not blaming anyone for staying away and remaining silent because I'm not sure I would know what to do under the circumstances. Can you tell me the right thing to do in this situation?--Not Over It Yet.

Dear Friend: When a woman gives birth to a stillborn she should receive even more attention that if she had had a living child. Flowers and notes are certainly in order---and phone calls from friends saying "I'm sorry" can do a great deal to lift the spirits of a bereaved woman.

You are generous to understand that your friends were not so much inconsiderate as unknowing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am calling on you to assert your corrective procedures in a friendly family discussion.

While I was visiting family and other kissin' cousins last summer back in Iowa (near Sioux City, as a matter of fact), I brought up the subject of how they all needed to reverse their paper towels and toilet tissue on the spools since they were placed incorrectly.

The paper rolls should be coming from the wall, up toward the top, over and out. They all disagreed.

Please settle this for all of us. In the meantime, they are calling me---Paper Crazy

Dear P.C.: There is no right or wrong way to dispense paper towels or toilet tissue. It's strictly a matter of personal preference.

My preference happens to be the same as your cousins'. Maybe it's because I'm from Iowa, too, and that's the way my mother used to do it.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious--lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Lander's booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Sent 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Exercise sessions dull?

Try these new ideas

If the mere thought of touching your toes a hundred times or jogging in place for ten minutes wears you out before you even start, you are not alone.

While few people will deny the benefits of exercising to keep fit, the fact is that if you're a typical American you've probably had a lot of false starts with exercise programs.

Let's face it, very few people find themselves doing pushups for the fun of it or get up in the middle of the night on impulse to work out with barbells. The problem with regular fitness workouts is that too often they become routine and tedious.

Here, then, are some tips on how you can keep your exercise sessions from getting dull, from the Health Insurance Institute.

-- Whether you're a runner, jogger, or a gymnast, get another member of your family, or a friend, to join in. You will find that having the companionship of a fellow jogger or a co-exerciser will make the workout much more pleasant.

-- Rather than face the same walls every day, change the scene. If you exercise at home, work out in different rooms. For those who participate in outside fitness programs, an occasional change of locale to prevent tedium is advised.

-- Alternate your exercises from day to day. However, do start with the easier exercises first in order to warm up.

-- Do set yourself a definite starting time for your daily workout and stick to it. Keeping to the same time slot is usually the only way most people can work a regular exercise routein into their daily schedule.

-- Don't overtire yourself. If you exercise at an unaccustomed pace, your body will only become wearier as your enthusiasm gets lower.

-- Set goals for yourself and keep a chart of your progress--miles you've run as well as pounds and inches lost.

Booklet gives guide for prenatal care

PRENATAL CARE

So you're going to have a baby. If it's your first, you'll probably have more questions now than any other time in your life. And even if you've had a baby before, you're bound to have a few new questions. How much weight should you gain? Why do you feel so tired? What should you watch out for between checkups? What will happen when you get to the hospital?

These questions and others are answered in a publication from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Prenatal Care tells how to maintain good general health during preganancy, what to look for between checkups with your doctor, and how to handle common health complaints, such as nausea, fatigue and backache. For your copy of Prenatal Care, send $1.05 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 121E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Here are some interesting facts about pregnancy:

Mothers who smoke have a greater chance of having a baby with a low birth weight. If you do smoke, try to cut down on the number of cigarettes.

Varicose veins are an enlargement of your veins, usually occuring in the lower leg. Frequently these varicose veins will get smaller and disappear during the first few weeks after you have your baby. Try to avoid tight clothing. If possible, try not to stand in one place for a long period of time. Sit down and put your feet up occasionally.

During pregnancy do not take any drugs or medicines -- not even an aspirin-- unless prescribed by your doctor. Many drugs can pass through your body to your baby and can have a harmful effect.

Between checkups, you should be aware of first warning signs of complications. Immediate care from your doctor can help prevent serious problems. Some early warning signs include: bleeding, no matter how slight; swelling or puffiness of your face or hands and sudden extreme weight gain; severe, continous headache; or dimness, blurring of vision, or flashes of light before your eyes.

Visit your doctor or health clinic early! Early and continuous care helps prevent serious illness for both you and your baby.

Prenatal Care ($1.05) is one of more than 200 selected publications listed in the Consumer Information Catalog, published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration. For your free copy of the Catalog, send a postcrd to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Grandma's corner

At the first attack of chiggers let a drop of ammonia touch the affected spot and the cure is immediate. Or rub the chigger bites with an asprin tablet slightly dampened.

Put small pieces of cucumber peel on shelves to drive away ants.

Put a sponge in a saucer and saturate with oil of lavender. Put one in each room and no flies will stay.

Red ants can be kept out of the pantry if a small quantity of green sage is placed on the shelves.

The best solution for mosquito bites is calamine lotion.

Dear Ann Landers

Wife needs to be alone

Dear Ann Landers: I love my husband very much, but we have one BIG problem. I'm a person who needs to be alone at times and John wants to be with me every minute.

I've told him repeatedly that I value my privacy and have pleaded with him to respect my wishes. Either he's not listening or I'm not expressing myself properly. Would you believe I have to lock myself in the bathroom just to get a few minutes by myself?

This has affected my sexual feelings toward him. John forces his presence on me to such a degree that I don't care to be close anymore. Am I unreasonable? Am I selfish? Please level with me, Ann.

I've reached the point where I want out of this marriage so I can call my soul my own.--Smothered in Bakersfield

Dear Baker: The first six words of your letter do not square with your last sentence. Sounds to me as if you've written a Dear John letter to Ann Landers.

If he wants to save your marriage he should get counseling. He needs to develop some inner resources so he won't have to be on you neck every minute. He also needs to understand YOUR need to be left alone. A mature relationship can tolerate silence and periods of "apartness." Too thick won't stick.

Dear Ann: Recently I gave birth to a stillborn baby. When I was in the hospital very few people phoned to say anything. I received no flowers and not even one sympathy card. I felt so sad and heartsick, yet I am not blaming anyone for staying away and remaining silent because I'm not sure I would know what to do under the circumstances. Can you tell me the right thing to do in this situation?--Not Over It Yet.

Dear Friend: When a woman gives birth to a stillborn she should receive even more attention that if she had had a living child. Flowers and notes are certainly in order--and phone calls from friends saying "I'm sorry" can do a great deal to lift the spirits of a bereaved woman.

You are generous to understand that your friends were not so much inconsiderate as unknowing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am calling on you to assert your corrective procedures in a friendly family discussion.

While I was visiting family and other kissin' cousins last summer back in Iowa (near Sioux City, as a matter of fact), I brought up the subject of how they all needed to reverse their paper towels and toilet tissue on the spools since they were placed incorrectly.

The paper rolls should be coming from the wall, up toward the top, over and out. They all disagreed.

Please settle this for all of us. In the meantime, they are calling me--Paper Crazy

Dear P.C.: There is no right or wrong way to dispense paper towels or toilet tissue. It's strictly a matter of personal preference.

My preference happens to be the same as your cousins'. Maybe it's because I'm from Iowa, too, and that's the way my mother used to do it.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious--lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Lander's booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Sent 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Perryville gets relief, power as Saints drop to third-place tie

PERRYVILLE — A brilliant relief job by righty Dave Bohnert and a pair of late-game homeruns gave the Perryville Stars an 8-4 Bi-State League victory over Sikeston Thursday night. The victory moved Perryville into a third-place tie with the Saints, each team holding an 8-6 league mark. Idle Anna, 10-7, eased back into second. The decision, coupled with Cape's 13-3 romp over Ste. Genevieve Wednesday night, clinched the league title for the Caps. Cape has a 15-3 record with two league contests to go.

Bohnert didn't overpower anybody, fanning only two, but he had the Sikeston batters beating the ball into the dirt all night long. The lanky righthander came in in relief of starter Terry Bazzell during the second inning and 12 of the 22 outs he got were on the ground.

Sikeston scored three in the first. Rick Eisenbach reached first on a wide throw by the thirdbaseman, then stole second and third. After Bill Schatzley walked, Rick Chastain singled in the game's first run, sending Schatzley to third. With one out, Shell singled to center for a 2-0 lead and Chastain later scored from third on a wild pitch.

Jackson showed signs of inactivity in the first when he walked three batters. The righthander had been slated to work a Sunday game, but the scheduled Saints starter came up with a sore arm. A bases-loaded walk to Dick Erlacker scored a Perryville run and made the score 3-1.

The Saints scored their last run in the second. Bruce Lawrence was hit by a pitch and went to second when Bazzell uncorked a wild pitch. Jackson's line drive to center scored Lawrence. With two out, Schatzley's single knocked Bazzell out and Bohnert came on to silence the Sikeston bats.

Gotto doubled to left to start the fifth and scored with one out when Mike Wengert grounded out. The score stayed at 4-2 until the bottom of the seventh, when the muggy heat got to Jackson.

A walk and Mark Cissell's single preceded Niswonger's long shot to left. Jackson hung a slow curve to the Perryville leadoff man.

"I didn't have anything when the game started," Jackson pointed out ruefully, "and things got worse as the game went on."

But the gutty hurler kept fighting back and getting the Perryville batters out. Also, the only relief hurler on hand was Sammy Taylor, and he is scheduled to oppose Herrin on Sunday.

"That fellow beat us," one Saints said about Perryville centerfielder Mark Gotto. With the score 5-4, in the eighth Jim Saulter belted a high drive to center. Gotto raced to the fence and caught the homerun bid. Then, his homer in the bottom of inning put the game out of reach.

Sikeston tries to get back on the winning track tonight with an 8 p.m. game under the V.F.W. Stadium lights. Glen Alexander is the scheduled pitcher.

Porter getting Royal treatment

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When he was nine years old, people started telling Darrell Porter that greatness lay within him twitching like a finger on the trigger of a gun.

He was an Oklahoma prep all-state quarterback, an all-state basketball player and, in the eyes of knowledgeable baseball people, the next Johnny Bench. Life was a ripe melon just waiting to be plucked.

One day in 1970 Steve Owens, who had won the Heisman Trophy at Oklahoma the year before, took him into an an Oklahoma City restaurant on a recruiting mission for the Sooners.

Autograph hunters besieged Owens, who nodded to Porter and told one youngster, "What about this guy? You better get his autograph, too. He's going to be a big star some day."

"Oh," said the boy, "I'll wait."

The incident was hilarious at the time. Later, when his world turned dark and gray, it became ominous.

Now, finally, it's funny again.

The Milwaukee Brewers made him their No. 1 draft choice later that spring and he flashed through the minor leagues, making his major league debut in 1971 at age 19.

This year Porter left a scene of disappointment when the Brewers traded him, along with pitcher Jim Colborn, to Kansas City. He was named the Royals' player of the month in April.

Thursday night, the left-handed hitting catcher singled and scored two runs to help the Royals nip Detroit, 4-3. His batting average stands at .280, with eight home runs and 36 RBI. Defensively, he has been superlative.

For Kansas City, it's turning out to be one of the most profitable trades the club ever made.

Colborn notched his 11th victory of the year Thursday night, tops on the Royals' staff, with steady relief help from Larry Gura. Porter scored what turned out to be the the winning run in the sixth on a triple by hot-hitting Frank White, his third RBI of the night.

The Tigers kept the heat on with solo home runs by Jason Thompson and Ron LeFlore and Steve Kemp's RBI single.

As far as Porter is concerned, coming to the Royals was "like being reborn."

Things never really worked out with the Brewers, and last season was the most miserable year of his life. He hit only .208 and suffered through a series of personal setbacks, not the least of which was a continuing conflict with Brewer Manager Alex Grammas.

The world that before held so much promise was beginning to frighten him.

"My confidence was shot," he recalls. "I couldn't think about the team because I was so worried about myself. I tried not to withdraw, but I know I did.

"When this season began I knew it would be a turning point in my life. But I didn't know which way it would turn."

He grew more and more introspective.

"One day last winter I realized," he says, "that the most valuable thing a person can have is peace of mind. I realized that I could hit .400, drive in 150 runs and throw out 80 runners a season and if I didn't have peace of mind I wouldn't have anything.

"I think the main reason I'm playing well now is because I'm happy with Darrell Porter. I feel like I really belong now. I feel like I can do my job as well as anybody.

BRUISED BASS

It's a place to refuel the outboard motor, get hot coffee, and ask questions of other anglers and the dock operator.

During a visit to a southern impoundment they learned that fish caught and released suffer injuries that will inhibit their feeding for several days.

This was the observation of a fishing dock operator who likes to keep several bass on live display. When he catches a large bass he puts it in his bait holding tank for several days.

He noticed that freshly caught fish all suffered discoloration of the lips where they had been hooked. Apparently a massive bruise, this condition lasts three to four days.

During this time the bass don't bother the minnows in the bait tank.

However, as the discoloration fades, the bass begin feeding and will clean out a tankful of minnows in a couple of days.

The dock operator also tested his observations by trying to get the captured fish to strike an artificial lure.

The same thing happened. For several days nothing. Then, as the bruise healed, the bass would strike the hookless lure.

Assuming that the same things happen when a bass is released by a fisherman, it's easy to see that the fish isn't likely to strike another artificial lure for at least three days.

Basketball clinic will open Monday

The Sikeston High School basketball clinic opens Monday morning at 9:00 a.m., with boys from grades 8-12 being eligible to participate in the weeklong event.

SHS coach Buddy Spears will conduct the clinic, which will include fundamental drills and scrimmages. Athletes must have proof of physical examination and insurance before participating in the clinic.

Because of the resurfacing of the basketball court at the field house, the clinic may have to be moved to the Junior High School gym.

Boone doesn't know his own speed; Cards win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If Bob Boone realized that he was Seattle Slow rather than Seattle Slew, the Philadelphia Phillies might be approaching tonight's twi-night doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs just three games off the Cubs' pace in the National League East.

Instead, the second-place Phillies are four games back starting a four-game series with the Cubs, most of whom watched the St. Louis Cardinals rally for three runs in the ninth and then score twice in the eleventh Thursday night for a 7-6 victory.

Boone got four hits in five at bats, but he was thrown out at third, second and home before the loss was a fact.

"Billy (Demars-third base coach) tried to stop Bob the first time, and Tony (Taylor-first base coach) hollered for him to stop the second," said Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark. "It was poor base running and I'll talk to him about it."

Boone had logical explanations for his headlong dashes, but none took into consideration his lack of base running speed. He did have an excuse for being caught at the plate in the eighth. DeMars waved him home.

But despite Boone's base running problems, the Phillies had the game all wrapped up with a 5-2 lead in the ninth inning. Another poor relief job by Gene Garber cost the Phillies the win.

Garber served a single to pinchhitter Lou Brock leading off the ninth, followed by Ted Simmons' 13th home run. Tony Scott singled and stole second while Garber was getting Ken Reitz to fly out. Ozark then brought in Ron Reed to pitch to pinchhitter Dave Rader, who struck out.

St. Louis Manager Vern Rapp sent Dane Iorg to bat for pitcher Butch Metzger. Iorg, who was traded by the Phillies to the Cards June 15, singled across the tying run.

The game droned into the 11th with Rawly Eastwick against Tug McGraw, the third Philadelphia reliever. With one out McGraw walked Mike Phillips.

"You can't walk those .188 hitters," McGraw was to say later.

Hector Cruz then batted for Eastwick and rifled a double just inside the third base line nto the peft field corner, scoring Phiplips.

On the throw to the plate, Larry Bowa was charged with an error when his relay sailed past Boone and Cruz steamed into third. Cruz scored on an infield out.

Hcabosky got the first two batters, but Jerry Martin singled. Greg Luzinski socked a line drive to center that hit the fence a foot from the top. It went for a double, scoring Martin. Pinchhitter Dave Johnson, however, flied out to end the game.

McGraw explainednhis confrontation with Cruz.

"Hector outsmarted me," said the Phillies' reliever. "I had him all set up for a screwball. I tried to get him inside and he got me. Give him credit."

Cruz said he was guessing inside and got his pitch in the strike zone.

"Tug, he pitch me the same way all the time," Cruz explained. "He throw me three away and then he come inside. I expect a ball inside, but he throw a strike. I see it. I hit it."

Perryville gets relief, power as Saints drop to third-place tie

PERRYVILLE — A brilliant relief job by righty Dave Bohnert and a pair of late-game homeruns gave the Perryville Stars an 8-4 Bi-State League victory over Sikeston Thursday night. The victory moved Perryville into a third-place tie with the Saints, each team holding an 8-6 league mark. Idle Anna, 10-7, eased back into second. The decision, coupled with Cape's 13-3 romp over Ste. Genevieve Wednesday night, clinched the league title for the Caps. Cape has a 15-3 record with two league contests to go.

Bohnert didn't overpower anybody, fanning only two, but he had the Sikeston batters beating the ball into the dirt all night long. The lanky righthander came in in relief of starter Terry Bazzell during the second inning and 12 of the 22 outs he got were on the ground.

Sikeston scored three in the first. Rick Eisenbach reached first on a wide throw by the thirdbaseman, then stole second and third. After Bill Schatzley walked, Rick Chastain singled in the game's first run, sending Schatzley to third. With one out, Shell singled to center for a 2-0 lead and Chastain later scored from third on a wild pitch.

Jackson showed signs of inactivity in the first when he walked three batters. The righthander had been slated to work a Sunday game, but the scheduled Saints starter came up with a sore arm. A bases-loaded walk to Dick Erlacker scored a Perryville run and made the score 3-1.

The Saints scored their last run in the second. Bruce Lawrence was hit by a pitch and went to second when Bazzell uncorked a wild pitch. Jackson's line drive to center scored Lawrence. With two out, Schatzley's single knocked Bazzell out and Bohnert came on to silence the Sikeston bats.

Gotto doubled to left to start the fifth and scored with one out when Mike Wengert grounded out. The score stayed at 4-2 until the bottom of the seventh, when the muggy heat got to Jackson.

A walk and Mark Cissell's single preceded Niswonger's long shot to left. Jackson hung a slow curve to the Perryville leadoff man.

"I didn't have anything when the game started," Jackson pointed out ruefully, "and things got worse as the game went on."

But the gutty hurler kept fighting back and getting the Perryville batters out. Also, the only relief hurler on hand was Sammy Taylor, and he is scheduled to oppose Herrin on Sunday.

"That fellow beat us," one Saints said about Perryville centerfielder Mark Gotto. With the score 5-4, in the eighth Jim Saulter belted a high drive to center. Gotto raced to the fence and caught the homerun bid. Then, his homer in the bottom of inning put the game out of reach.

Sikeston tries to get back on the winning track tonight with an 8 p.m. game under the V.F.W. Stadium lights. Glen Alexander is the scheduled pitcher.

Porter getting Royal treatment

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When he was nine years old, people started telling Darrell Porter that greatness lay within him twitching like a finger on the trigger of a gun.

He was an Oklahoma prep all-state quarterback, an all-state basketball player and, in the eyes of knowledgeable baseball people, the next Johnny Bench. Life was a ripe melon just waiting to be plucked.

One day in 1970 Steve Owens, who had won the Heisman Trophy at Oklahoma the year before, took him into an an Oklahoma City restaurant on a recruiting mission for the Sooners.

Autograph hunters besieged Owens, who nodded to Porter and told one youngster, "What about this guy? You better get his autograph, too. He's going to be a big star some day."

"Oh," said the boy, "I'll wait."

The incident was hilarious at the time. Later, when his world turned dark and gray, it became ominous.

Now, finally, it's funny again. The Milwaukee Brewers made him their No. 1 draft choice later that spring and he flashed through the minor leagues, making his major league debut in 1971 at age 19.

This year Porter left a scene of disappointment when the Brewers traded him, along with pitcher Jim Colborn, to Kansas City. He was named the Royals' player of the month in April.

Thursday night, the left-handed hitting catcher singled and scored two runs to help the Royals nip Detroit, 4-3. His batting average stands at .280, with eight home runs and 36 RBI. Defensively, he has been superlative.

For Kansas City, it's turning out to be one of the most profitable trades the club ever made.

Colborn notched his 11th victory of the year Thursday night, tops on the Royals' staff, with steady relief help from Larry Gura. Porter scored what turned out to be the the winning run in the sixth on a triple by hot-hitting Frank White, his third RBI of the night.

The Tigers kept the heat on with solo home runs by Jason Thompson and Ron LeFlore and Steve Kemp's RBI single.

As far as Porter is concerned, coming to the Royals was "like being reborn."

Things never really worked out with the Brewers, and last season was the most miserable year of his life. He hit only .208 and suffered through a series of personal setbacks, not the least of which was a continuing conflict with Brewer Manager Alex Grammas.

The world that before held so much promise was beginning to frighten him.

"My confidence was shot," he recalls. "I couldn't think about the team because I was so worried about myself. I tried not to withdraw, but I know I did.

"When this season began I knew it would be a turning point in my life. But I didn't know which way it would turn."

He grew more and more introspective.

"One day last winter I realized," he says, "that the most valuable thing a person can have is peace of mind. I realized that I could hit .400, drive in 150 runs and throw out 80 runners a season and if I didn't have peace of mind I wouldn't have anything.

"I think the main reason I'm playing well now is because I'm happy with Darrell Porter. I feel like I really belong now. I feel like I can do my job as well as anybody.

It's a place to refuel the outboard motor, get hot coffee, and ask questions of other anglers and the dock operator.

During a visit to a southern impoundment they learned that fish caught and released suffer injuries that will inhibit their feeding for several days.

This was the observation of a fishing dock operator who likes to keep several bass on live display. When he catches a large bass he puts it in his bait holding tank for several days.

He noticed that freshly caught fish all suffered discoloration of the lips where they had been hooked. Apparently a massive bruise, this condition lasts three to four days.

During this time the bass don't bother the minnows in the bait tank.

However, as the discoloration fades, the bass begin feeding and will clean out a tankful of minnows in a couple of days.

The dock operator also tested his observations by trying to get the captured fish to strike an artificial lure.

The same thing happened. For several days nothing. Then, as the bruise healed, the bass would strike the hookless lure.

Assuming that the same things happen when a bass is released by a fisherman, it's easy to see that the fish isn't likely to strike another artificial lure for at least three days.

Basketball clinic will open Monday

The Sikeston High School basketball clinic opens Monday morning at 9:00 a.m., with boys from grades 8-12 being eligible to participate in the weeklong event.

SHS coach Buddy Spears will conduct the clinic, which will include fundamental drills and scrimmages. Athletes must have proof of physical examination and insurance before participating in the clinic.

Because of the resurfacing of the basketball court at the field house, the clinic may have to be moved to the Junior High School gym.

Boone doesn't know his own speed; Cards win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If Bob Boone realized that he was Seattle Slow rather than Seattle Slew, the Philadelphia Phillies might be approaching tonight's twi-night doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs just three games off the Cubs' pace in the National League East.

Instead, the second-place Phillies are four games back starting a four-game series with the Cubs, most of whom watched the St. Louis Cardinals rally for three runs in the ninth and then score twice in the eleventh Thursday night for a 7-6 victory.

Boone got four hits in five at bats, but he was thrown out at third, second and home before the loss was a fact.

"Billy (Demars-third base coach) tried to stop Bob the first time, and Tony (Taylor-first base coach) hollered for him to stop the second," said Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark. "It was poor base running and I'll talk to him about it."

Boone had logical explanations for his headlong dashes, but none took into consideration his lack of base running speed. He did have an excuse for being caught at the plate in the eighth. DeMars waved him home.

But despite Boone's base running problems, the Phillies had the game all wrapped up with a 5-2 lead in the ninth inning. Another poor relief job by Gene Garber cost the Phillies the win.

Garber served a single to pinchhitter Lou Brock leading off the ninth, followed by Ted Simmons' 13th home run. Tony Scott singled and stole second while Garber was getting Ken Reitz to fly out. Ozark then brought in Ron Reed to pitch to pinchhitter Dave Rader, who struck out.

St. Louis Manager Vern Rapp sent Dane Iorg to bat for pitcher Butch Metzger. Iorg, who was traded by the Phillies to the Cards June 15, singled across the tying run.

The game droned into the 11th with Rawly Eastwick against Tug McGraw, the third Philadelphia reliever. With one out McGraw walked Mike Phillips.

"You can't walk those .188 hitters," McGraw was to say later.

Hector Cruz then batted for Eastwick and rifled a double just inside the third base line nto the peft field corner, scoring Phiplips.

On the throw to the plate, Larry Bowa was charged with an error when his relay sailed past Boone and Cruz steamed into third. Cruz scored on an infield out.

Hcabosky got the first two batters, but Jerry Martin singled. Greg Luzinski socked a line drive to center that hit the fence a foot from the top. It went for a double, scoring Martin. Pinchhitter Dave Johnson, however, flied out to end the game.

McGraw explainednhis confrontation with Cruz.

"Hector outsmarted me," said the Phillies' reliever. "I had him all set up for a screwball. I tried to get him inside and he got me. Give him credit."

Cruz said he was guessing inside and got his pitch in the strike zone.

"Tug, he pitch me the same way all the time," Cruz explained. "He throw me three away and then he come inside. I expect a ball inside, but he throw a strike. I see it. I hit it."

Collins wins showdown

Need it be said that once again Musial League games highlighted Sikeston Little League at the Complex last night. In fact, the first game was virtually impossible to top. In that game, Collins won 1-0 in six innings over Rotary in a battle for possession of first place.

The second game was won by Meredith 9-2 over Flower Basket. Flower Basket out hit Meredith 5-3, but Meredith scored six runs in the fifth inning to put the game out of reach. Gary Laffoon took the loss for the Flower Basket squad and James Perkins chalked up the win for Meredith.

Joe Fetsch rapped a lead off triple in the first inning for Collins Construction. He then scored on an infield grounder to give Collins their one run. Brian Self pitched the first three innings for Collins and struck out nine of ten Rotary players he faced. Big Stan Templeton was the hurler for Rotary and he struck out ten batters in the five innings he pitched. All together, 24 batters fell before the strikeout in this pitcher's duel. The triple by Fetsch was the only hit by Collins and Rotary could muster only two, both by second base person Shirlene Grissom. Brian Self was the winner and Stan Templeton the loser.

American League action in the first game was won by Fabick as they powered past First National Bank 12-3. Mike Buchanan was tapped with the loss as Shawn Williams took home the win.

In the second game, Bridger destroyed Nunnelee 28-7. Bridger rammed out 19 hits and produced a fifteen run third inning to waltz home the rest of the game. Pat Curry was 5-for-5 to stand out in the Bridger offense. David Peridore was the winning hurler and a battered Kevin Miller took the loss.

In the first game of National League play, Pizza Inn and the Jaycees both kept their perfect records intact. Pizza Inn coasted past the Jaycees 13-1 as Todd Baker tossed a no-hitter for the winners. This game was the last of the year for Pizza Inn and they wond the National League title with a record of 14-0. The loss moved the Jaycees record to 0-13 with Doug Chessor taking this loss.

In the final game of action, Security National Bank scored four in the fourth to provide the bulge needed to down A & B 7-6. Tony Brannon was the winner for Security and Tim Brashear took it on the chin for A & B.

Sikeston JBR District opens tomorrow at VFW

Eight Junior Babe Ruth League teams from District Three will battle it out beginning Saturday afternoon at VFW Stadium for the right to advance to the state tournament at Lebanon as Sikeston hosts this year's district tournament.

Competing in the double-elimination event are Dexter, Jackson, Bi-County, Illmo-Scott City, New Madrid County, Mississippi County, Chaffee and the host team, Sikeston.

Play gets underway at 1:00 p.m. Saturday, with Dexter taking on Jackson. Bi-County meets Sikeston at 3:00, Scott City plays New Madrid County at 5:00 and Mississippi County squares off against Chaffee at 7:00.

Saturday's winners battle in the first two Sunday games, which again get underway at 1:00. The loser's bracket action starts at 5:00.

The tournament continues Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, with the winner being crowned Wednesday evening. Two games may be required Wednesday night if the unbeaten team loses in the first game.

Pitchers shine in SBR

Any baseball fan who likes pitching should have been at VFW Stadium Thursday night.

No fewer than three stellar pitching performances were turned in as Senior Babe Ruth League play wound toward a close for the 1977 campaign. Unfortunately, one of the three came away with a tough-luck loss.

In the first game of the night, Roger Cloud of Security National tossed a three-hitter at the second-place Elks, shutting out the hard-hitting club 9-0. Cloud racked up seven strikeouts in the six-inning battle and didn't allow a hit until the fourth, by which time his team had staked him to a 4-0 lead. Security National added three in the fifth and two in the sixth to finish their out.

In the nightcap, Don Francis of Jim Moore and Terry Wheatley of Fremont McTigue hooked up in one of the best mound duels of the season. Wheatley had a no-hitter going until the fifth and a shutout until the sixth, but tallies by Jim Moore in the sixth and the seventh gave them an exciting 2-1 victory.

Fremont McTigue scored an unearned run in the third off Francis, who struck out twelve while scattering four hits to get the win. After threatening in the fourth and fifth, Jim Moore finally broke through against Wheatley, with Jay Cox driving home the tying run in the sixth with a single.

In the seventh, a walk and a throwing error on a force play at second gave Jim Moore a two-on-two-out threat. Francis helped himself by lacing Wheatley's first pitch into right field, and Eddie Wasson scored the winning run when a throw to second to try to trap a runner who had made a wide turn went into center field. Wheatley, who gave up only three hits and one earned run, suffered the loss.

Oran hosts fastpitch meet

ORAN -- Fourteen of the best fastpitch softball teams from this area -- including two from out of state -- will converge on Oran City Park this weekend for the Oran Invitational Tournament. The double-elimination event gets underway at 6:30 this evening, with play being held simultaneously on both fields at the park.

Six teams from the tough SeMo Fastpitch Softball League are entered in the tournament -- New Hamburg Righter Trucking, Vanduser, Scott City, Benton, Kelso and Oran Halter Gas. Joining them are a pair of Poplar Bluff teams -- Le Grands and Snider -- along with teams from Kennett, West Plains, Flat River and Farmington. Jonesboro, Ill. and Dyersburg, Tenn. round out the bracket.

First round play finds Righter taking on Vanduser and Oran meeting Scott City in tonight's 6:30 games. At 8:00, Le Grands takes on Farmington, and Benton battles Jonesboro at 9:30. Kennett meets Snider and West Plains takes on Kelso in Saturday morning contests. Flat River and Dyersburg drew byes in the first round.

Play continues throughout Saturday and Sunday, with the trophies being awarded after the final game Sunday evening.

Individual admission to the tournament is $1.00 per person. A weekend pass can be purchased for $2.00.

Eagles clinch crown

The Eagles clinched the championship of the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League in grand style Thursday night, walloping the Merchants 16-3. The win game the Eagles a 14-2 record with two games to go, making it impossible for second place Steward Steel (11-5) to catch them.

Kenny Stokes clubbed a three-run homer in the fourth inning to highlight a wild frame that saw 11 Eagle players cross the plate. Carl Barnett had homered in the second.

John Chessor held the Merchants to three hits to get the victory.

In the second game, Jerry Presley drove in Bobby Bye with the winning run in the top of the ninth to give Purkey's Restaurant a 4-3 decision over Bank of Sikeston. Bye had doubled to start the inning off loser Rick O'Donnell. Bob Stinnet earned the win.

Pitchers shine in SBR

Any baseball fan who likes pitching should have been at VFW Stadium Thursday night.

No fewer than three stellar pitching performances were turned in as Senior Babe Ruth League play wound toward a close for the 1977 campaign. Unfortunately, one of the three came away with a tough-luck loss.

In the first game of the night, Roger Cloud of Security National tossed a three-hitter at the second-place Elks, shutting out the hard-hitting club 9-0. Cloud racked up seven strikeouts in the six-inning battle and didn't allow a hit until the fourth, by which time his team had staked him to a 4-0 lead. Security National added three in the fifth and two in the sixth to finish their out.

In the nightcap, Don Francis of Jim Moore and Terry Wheatley of Fremont McTigue hooked up in one of the best mound duels of the season. Wheatley had a no-hitter going until the fifth and a shutout until the sixth, but tallies by Jim Moore in the sixth and the seventh gave them an exciting 2-1 victory.

Fremont McTigue scored an unearned run in the third off Francis, who struck out twelve while scattering four hits to get the win. After threatening in the fourth and fifth, Jim Moore finally broke through against Wheatley, with Jay Cox driving home the tying run in the sixth with a single.

In the seventh, a walk and a throwing error on a force play at second gave Jim Moore a two-on-two-out threat. Francis helped himself by lacing Wheatley's first pitch into right field, and Eddie Wasson scored the winning run when a throw to second to try to trap a runner who had made a wide turn went into center field. Wheatley, who gave up only three hits and one earned run, suffered the loss.

Oran hosts fastpitch meet

ORAN -- Fourteen of the best fastpitch softball teams from this area -- including two from out of state -- will converge on Oran City Park this weekend for the Oran Invitational Tournament. The double-elimination event gets underway at 6:30 this evening, with play being held simultaneously on both fields at the park.

Six teams from the tough SeMo Fastpitch Softball League are entered in the tournament -- New Hamburg Righter Trucking, Vanduser, Scott City, Benton, Kelso and Oran Halter Gas. Joining them are a pair of Poplar Bluff teams -- Le Grands and Snider -- along with teams from Kennett, West Plains, Flat River and Farmington. Jonesboro, Ill. and Dyersburg, Tenn. round out the bracket.

First round play finds Righter taking on Vanduser and Oran meeting Scott City in tonight's 6:30 games. At 8:00, Le Grands takes on Farmington, and Benton battles Jonesboro at 9:30. Kennett meets Snider and West Plains takes on Kelso in Saturday morning contests. Flat River and Dyersburg drew byes in the first round.

Play continues throughout Saturday and Sunday, with the trophies being awarded after the final game Sunday evening.

Individual admission to the tournament is $1.00 per person. A weekend pass can be purchased for $2.00.

Eagles clinch crown

The Eagles clinched the championship of the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League in grand style Thursday night, walloping the Merchants 16-3. The win game the Eagles a 14-2 record with two games to go, making it impossible for second place Steward Steel (11-5) to catch them.

Kenny Stokes clubbed a three-run homer in the fourth inning to highlight a wild frame that saw 11 Eagle players cross the plate. Carl Barnett had homered in the second.

John Chessor held the Merchants to three hits to get the victory.

In the second game, Jerry Presley drove in Bobby Bye with the winning run in the top of the ninth to give Purkey's Restaurant a 4-3 decision over Bank of Sikeston. Bye had doubled to start the inning off loser Rick O'Donnell. Bob Stinnet earned the win.

What's the law?

The case of the chauvinist religion

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Donald awakened his wife with kisses, one morning, which she didn't appreciate since he was giving them to the maid. As a result, she obtained a separation and custody of their two children.

While having his freedom wasn't too tough to take, what Donald really wanted were his two kids. Consequently, he kept a close eye on his wife's activities in the hopes that she would provide him with grounds to obtain their custody. And ultimately, as far as Donald was concerned, she did when she changed her religion.

Racing off to court, he demanded custody.

"Her new religion is too chauvinistic a one under which to raise children," he charged. "It prohibits saluting the flag, it bars pledging allegiance to our country, it bans serving in the armed forces and even forbids working for the government. If my wife is allowed to keep our kids, they will grow up about as patriotic as Benedict Arnold."

"It's my religion," responded Donald's wife, "and they're my children. Under the Constitution, I can't be deprived of either because o the other."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, WOULD YOU PERMIT Donald's children to remain with their mother and her chauvinistic religion?

This is how the judge ruled: YES. The judge held that religious beliefs, teachings and practices are not grounds for depriving a parent of custody of a child so long as they are neither immoral nor illegal. And such was not the situation in this case.

In 1606, Rembrandt, the Dutch artist, was born in Leiden.

In 1870, Georgia became the last of the Confederate states to be readmitted to the Union.

In 1789, France's King Louis VI was awakened at 2 a.m. and told that his authority had collapsed with the fall of the Bastille in the French Revolution.

In 1918, in World War I, American troops attacked German positions at Chateau-Thierry in France.

In 1948, a Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia nominated President Harry S Truman for a second term.

In 1958, President Dwight D. Eisenhower ordered 3,500 Marines to Lebanon during a Middle East crisis.

Ten years ago: More than 30,000 workers in American copper refineries struck in a contract dispute that threatened to shut down 90 per cent of the nation's copper production.

Five years ago: More than 1,000 women and children fled Roman Catholic areas of Northern Ireland's capital, Belfast, as violence between Catholics and Protestants increased.

One year ago: The Democratic National Convention in New York City adjourned after approving Senator Walter Mondale of Minnesota as the running mate of presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

Thought for today: Some women will go anywhere for dinner, except to the kitchen. — anonymous.

State health goal to immunize all students

By SUE A. MERKNER
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri health officials plan to strictly enforce state laws requiring immunizations against certain diseases for children entering school this fall.

About 84 per cent of Missouri children in kindergarten through sixth grade are immunized against common childhood diseases, said Gary Shipley, assistant director, Missouri Bureau of Immunizable Diseases, but the state hopes to increase the number of immunized children even more.

Missouri law requires children be immunized against polio, rubeola (measles), rubella (German measles) and diphtheria before starting kindergarten through grade 12 in any public, private or parochial school.

An unimmunized child must leave school after one month's attendance. Written exemption from a physician or parent for medical or religious reasons would excuse a child from the immunization requirement. Shipley said the exemption "does not present a problem" because it is not misused by parents.

In addition to the state law, the Division of Health also has specific regulations for inoculations for pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus, which usually are included with the diphtheria shot.

This year, Missouri health officials plan to enforce the law more strictly and see that all children have the needed immunizations, Shipley said.

An increase in the state immunization budget from $279,178 last fiscal year to more than $1 million this year will be used to provide more vaccine and personnel and to check schools for compliance with state record keeping rules.

"Although we can't check all the more than 1,000 schools in the state to see that they are enforcing the law, we intend to do periodic audits and spot checks to see that superintendents are keeping complete records for each enrolled child," Shipley said.

The Missouri Public Health Department provides free vaccine to communities. Usually the vaccine is distributed free through public clinics, Shipley said. But a private physician also can administer the vaccine. Although a doctor may not charge for the vaccine, he still may charge for an office visit or other administrative costs, he said.

"We hope to increase the number of public clinics and to provide the necessary personnel with the new budget," Shipley said.

Earlier this year, a measles epidemic swept the county and the state, hitting people in 27 Missouri counties. During the first four months of 1976, eight measles cases were reported. During the same period in 1977, 571 cases were reported, an increase of "more than 7,000 per cent," Shipley said.

"Epidemics run in cycles, and this year measles took off across the entire country," he said. "Although I hesitate to say so, part of the reason for the epidemic in Missouri was that routine immunization clinics in schools were not kept up because of the focus of attention on administering swine flu shots."

Health officials did follow-up studies of 62 measles cases this year. Thirty persons were never vaccinated against the disease, 20 needed revaccinations and 12 had unclear vaccination histories, Shipley said.

"The obvious way to limit epidemics of diseases such as measles is proper vaccination," he said.

In an effort to promote better immunization, the state Department of Health has provided letters for all school districts to be sent to parents this summer urging compliance with state requirements.

"We are encouraging parents to be aware of what vaccines their children need and have them get it done during the summer, because the law will be enforced when school opens in the fall," Shipley said.

When to get shots

The Missouri Department of Health suggests the following guidelines for vaccinating children:

- Polio vaccine at age 2 months, 4 months, 18 months; booster at age 4 through 6 years.
- Combined diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis (DTP) vaccine: at age 2 months, 4 months, 6 months, 18 months; booster at age 4 through 6 years.
- Rubeola-rubella-mumps vaccine: at age 15 months (usually provides lifetime protection).

Among the 36 poets represented in the summer issue are two from Missouri, Jim Thomas of Kirksville and Jackie Rieke of Hazelwood. Both have previously published material in The Cape Rock.

Also featured in the issue are photographs of architectural details of Oxford University in England. They were taken by Mary beth White, who previously provided photographs of New Mexico which appeared in the Bicentennial issue of the periodical.

Photos in the summer volume are of human figures, ranging from the whimsical to the solemn, which decorate the buildings at Oxford.

Editors of the summer issue of the journal are Dr. Robert Burns, Dr. John Bierk, Dr. Bob Hamblin, Dr. Harvey Hecht, and Ted Hirschfield, all of the Southeast Missouri State English faculty.

Copies of the issue are $1 each. They are on sale at Cape Girardeau newsstands, or they may be ordered by mail through the Department of English at Southeast Missouri State.

Limit 75 for institute

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Applications from both students and teachers for the high school forensics institute to be held later this summer at Southeast Missouri State University are coming in rapidly, according to Dr. Thomas Harte, institute director.

Dr. Harte, an associate professor of speech communication and director of forensics at Southeast Missouri State, urged others wishing to enroll to submit their applications as soon as possible. He noted that the deadline is July 30 and there is an enrollment limit of 75 for each group.

The portion of the institute for students will begin July 31 and continue through Aug. 5. The teachers' program, for whi which participants may get one semester hour of graduate or undergraduate credit, will run Aug. 3-5.

All aspects of interscholastic debate competition will be covered during the institute, which is open to all, regardless of previous experience. Sessions for both beginners and experienced debaters and coaches will be proveded.

Besides learning the general techniques of debating or of caoching debaters, both students and teachers will get a head start in preparing the 1977-78 national high school debate topic.

The institute will conclude with an actual debate tournament.

Additional information about the program may be obtained by contacting Dr. Harte at Southeast Missouri State.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS SPACIOUS HOME has 11 closets, plus a storage closet, separate activity and sleeping areas and a two-car garage. Open space enhances the living area, with its beamed ceiling and panoramic window walls. The kitchen work area forms a convenient "U" shape. The sleeping wing has two bedrooms and a study which can also work as a third bedroom. Plan HA971G by Carl Gaiser calls for 1,885 square feet in the house area and 570 square feet in the garage. Those wishing further information may write the architect—enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope—at 25600 Telegraph Road, Southfield, Mich. 48075.

HERE'S AN EXPANSIBLE HOME THAT can be converted from a one bedroom bungalow into a three bedroom ranch house. The basic plan has a living room extended across the front of the house. If wanted, an additional living room can be added and the original living room can be converted into two bedrooms by adding partitions. Plan HA959G, designed by Carl Gaiser, has 978 square feet, and 431 more may be added if desired. Those wishing further information may write Gaiser—enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope—at 25600 Telegraph Rd., Southfield, Mich., 48075.

BEING A KING of beasts is no guarantee against boredom, which could be Roscoe's problem at the animal farm in Charleston Township, Ohio, where he is the star attraction. Or maybe he's just resting up for the busy season and crowds of tourists to come.

CAROLINE Kennedy, 19, whose family has been the subject of much news copy, is going into the news business herself. She will be working as a copy girl on the New York Daily News during the summer.

JOHN F. Kennedy Jr. is spending part of his summer far from the madding crowd. Kennedy, 16, is participating in a survival fitness exercise on an uninhabited island off the Maine coast. Equipment includes only basic tools and supplies.

HOT ITEM in this season's biggest show on earth, an agile master of the European Swing catapults through a ring of fire. The feat is a high point of the 107th edition of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Donors needed for bloodmobile

When someone needs a blood transfusion, it isn't miraculously produced by the HOSPITAL. In order for the blood to be available, in fact, it would have been donated a few days earlier, then tested and processed by the Red Cross' Blood Center in St. Louis.

Then an ample supply is provided to your community hospital as it is needed. The Red Cross provides all the blood needed by your community.

It gets the blood from volunteer donors. Without help from people in each community, it wouldn't be able to do so, and your hospital would have to fine its own blood for patients.

Help keep this volunteer blood donor system going by participating in the bloodmobile to be held at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston. Hours are from noon to 6 p.m., July 26. To cut down your waiting time at the bloodmobile, make an appointment by calling Harold Jones' office at the hospital.

Former SeMo State band director dies

CAPE GIRARDEAU – The man whose name became synonymous with the Southeast Missouri State University Golden Eagles Marching Band and whose 20 years of dedication to that group brought national prominence to the university and to the city, LeRoy French Mason, 64, died at 2:30 a.m. Thursday in Missouri Baptist Hospital in St. Louis County.

Mason and his wife were in St. Louis to visit friends when he became ill unexpectedly.

Mason devoted more than 42 years to music education in Missouri and came SeMo State in 1957 from Jackson, where he had served as director of music for the public schools there.

Shortly after joining the university faculty, he originated the now well-known concept of the "marching marquee." The idea for the moving formation of words, which has been adopted by numberous bands in the nation, came to Mason when he saw lighted letters moving across an advertising display in a Cape Girardeau jewelry store.

During his tenure with the Golden Eagles, it also claimed more national television timethan any other band in the country from 1957 to 1975.

Beginning in 1957 with a 37-member band, Mason built the group, constantly honing it to perfection, to about 170, and the Golden Eagles in their blue and gold uniforms became one of the country's premier marching bands. From 1957 until his retirement, more than 1,150 members have marched with the top-notch band.

At one time a coronet and baritone player in his college band at Northeast Missouri State University in Kirksville, where he obtained both bachelor's and master's degrees, Mason reflected that his career in band directing made him much too busy to take the role of instrumentalist in nearly 35 years.

He was often found in his office at the university, where he spent literally hundreds of hours pouring over diagrams, selecting music and planning the theme shows that were favorites for thousands of SeMo State football fans who eagerly awaited the Golden Eagles' half-time shows under his direction. Preparation on band programs operated a full year in advance.

The Golden Eagles performed during televised professional fotball games 23 times, including 16 performances for the St. Louis Cardinals and a spectacular performance at the 1971 Super Bowl in Miami, Fla.

Mason became department head and chairman of the Division of Music at SeMo State in 1959. He was made professor of music emeritus at the university in April of this year.

Although best known for his work with the Golden Eagles, he also took an active interest in promoting the development of area high school bands.

In 1957, he invited 10 bands to the campus for special recognition at HOMECOMING FESTIVITIES. That number grew to 49 in 1966, at which time he began a rotating invitation system. Now some 27 bands are invited to the campus each fall.

He was also responsible for the summer music camps at the university. A total of 170 high school pupils took part in the first camp in 1958. By 1976, the camp had grown to attract some 2,500 young musicians during several sessions.

After earning his teaching degrees, Mason Mason also did graduate work at Northwestern University In Evanston, Ill., and the University of Colorado at Boulder. He began his career in schools at Mendon, Triplett, Sumner and LaGrange, coming to Riverview Gardens in St. Louis in 1936. He began the band and choral program at that school, remainng remaining there three years, also serving as supervisor of elementary music.

In 1939, Mason accepted a position with the Jackson school system, remaining there until 1957. While at Jackson, he served as director of music, bringing the Jackson High School marching band to prominence throughout the area.

He also directed the Jackson Municipal Band and Choral Club, and in 1944 started a band festival which led to formation of the Southeast Missouri High School Band Association in 1945. Mason served as president of that group in 1946, and in 1952 served as president of the Missouri Music Educators Association.

He was born Dec. 5, 1912 at Salisbury.

In May 1941, he married Frances Hardy, who died in 1961. On July 19,1963 he married Lois Schuette, who survives.

Mason was a member of Centenary United Methodist Church. He was also a member of the Cape Girardeau Rotary Club, serving as its pianist and organist.

Also surviving are: one son, Barydon Mason of Cape Girardeau, and three grandchildren.

Friends may call at Ford & Sons, Funeral Home, where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Saturday with Dr. J. Ray Trotter, pastor of Centenary United Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Donors needed for bloodmobile

When someone needs a blood transfusion, it isn't miraculously produced by the HOSPITAL. In order for the blood to be available, in fact, it would have been donated a few days earlier, then tested and processed by the Red Cross' Blood Center in St. Louis.

Then an ample supply is provided to your community hospital as it is needed. The Red Cross provides all the blood needed by your community.

It gets the blood from volunteer donors. Without help from people in each community, it wouldn't be able to do so, and your hospital would have to fine its own blood for patients.

Help keep this volunteer blood donor system going by participating in the bloodmobile to be held at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston. Hours are from noon to 6 p.m., July 26. To cut down your waiting time at the bloodmobile, make an appointment by calling Harold Jones' office at the hospital.
